TO HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS,

EDWARD, DUKE OF KENT,

DUKE OF STRATHERN, EARL OF DUBLIN, LATE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGHLAND SOCIETY OF LONDON,

&c. &c. &c.

SIR,

THE many proofs of friendly attachment your ROYAL HIGHNESS has given to Ireland, entitles you to the admiration and affection of all Irishmen.— This alone would be sufficient to bind me to you with every sentiment of esteem; but my debt of gratitude is greatly increased indeed, by your gracious condescension, in permitting me to announce you as the Patron of my Dictionary of the Irish Language.

THAT your ROYAL HIGHNESS may long continue the Protector and Patron of Science, and the ornament of your exalted Station, is, and ever will be, the sincere wish of

Your ROYAL HIGHNESS'S

Most devoted and obliged,

Most faithful and humble Servant,

EDWARD O'REILLY.

Dublin, 1st. Nov. 1817.

TO HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS

EDWARD, DUKE OF KENT,

DUKE OF STRATHMORE, EARL OF BURLINGHAM, LATE PRESIDENT OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY OF LONDON.

My dear Sir,

The many proofs of friendly attachment from Royal Highness has given to Ireland, entitled you to the admiration and affection of all Irishmen —
This alone would be sufficient to bind me to you with every sentiment of esteem; but my debt of gratitude is greatly increased, indeed, by your generous consideration in permitting me to announce you as the Patron of my Dictionary of the Irish Language.

That your Royal Highness may long continue the Protector and Patron of Science, and the ornament of your exalted Station, is and ever will be the sincere wish of

Your Royal Highness's

Most devoted and obliged

Most faithful and humble servant,

P R E F A C E.

THE great utility of a knowledge of the Irish language to those who wish to give a satisfactory account of the vernacular dialects and antiquities of most nations in Europe, has been confessed by Lhuyd, Bullet, Leibnitz, and other learned foreigners; and its absolute necessity to all who are desirous of becoming intimately acquainted with the emigrations, history, laws, manners, customs, religion, and learning of the early inhabitants of Ireland, is so obvious, as to preclude the necessity of impressing it on the mind by any species of argument. To strangers it is therefore interesting; but to the natives of Ireland, the preservation of this beautiful and expressive language should be of the utmost importance. In the several hundreds of ancient Irish manuscripts which still survive the erosive tooth of time, or the devastating hands of barbarous invaders, are to be found the venerable memorials of the piety, learning, wisdom, valour, and achievements of our ancestors. In the compositions of our Senachies, in our annals, and other historical documents, the migrations, contentions, settlements, and domestic polity of the primitive inhabitants of the country, are related with at least as much fidelity, and deserving of as much credit, as the early records of any other nation. In our laws will be seen strong proofs of the civilization of our forefathers: in them provision is made for the protection of property, the reward of virtue and merit, the prevention of crime, and the punishment of vice. In our medical books it will be found that our physicians had as much knowledge of the human frame, and as much skill in the treatment of disease, as the physicians of any other nation at the same period. And in the works of our bards may be discovered the grandest and most pathetic descriptions, the most sublime flights of fancy, and the most romantic tales of luxuriant imagination, displayed in elegant and appropriate language. These, however, for a number of years have been a locked up treasure to all who have not made Irish MSS. a particular study; and even to the studious, much labour and difficulty have occurred before a knowledge of them could be obtained; owing to the want of a Dictionary, to explain the meanings of the many thousands of words to be found in them, that no longer exist in the living language of the country.

THAT a great portion of our language should be nearly forgotten at the present day, will not be much wondered at, when it is considered, that for some hundreds of years it had been the policy of Government to use every mean in their power to eradicate our language, and to deprive our people of every opportunity to obtain education. For this absurd purpose our books were destroyed, acts of parliament passed, schoolmasters persecuted, and where laws or severity were found ineffectual, recourse was had to ridicule, to shame the people out of the most energetic, and, as Sir W. Temple has since described it, the most original and unmixed language now remaining in Europe. But even ridicule, that powerful engine over weak minds, has failed in producing the desired effect; and the Irish language still exists a living memorial of the refinement to which our ancestors had attained, and of the encouragement given by them to learning and learned men. This silly policy is at length laid aside; the reign of prejudice has expired, and is in a great measure succeeded by candid inquiry and rational investigation.

To elucidate our antiquities and bring fairly before the public the claims of ancient Ireland to a literary character, superior to that of neighbouring nations, the pens of some highly talented geniuses, have of late years been employed. Amongst those to whom Ireland is indebted for the rescuing of her history and language from obscurity, the Earl of Ross, and the late General Vallancy, hold the most distinguished places. By the labours of these gentlemen, and others skilled in our ancient tongue, the Irish language is proved to be nearly the same as the Phœnician, and many lights have been thrown upon the early periods of our history.

INDEPENDENTLY of the claims which this language has upon the general scholar for consideration, and upon the descendants of the aborigines for protection, it merits the attention of the Divine, the Lawyer, the Physician, and of all those who have to converse with the people, whose living and only language it is. It is the only medium through which instruction can be conveyed to at least four fifths of the people of Ireland. The Divine therefore, who neglects this language, should consider how far he is competent to discharge the duty he owes to those souls committed to his care. The great utility of this language to the Lawyer, is proved frequently in the year. In every county, at every sessions, trials occur in which prisoners or witnesses can be heard only through the medium of an interpreter, probably but ill qualified for such an office, and who, by the mistake of a single word in the evidence, may cause the acquittal of a murderer, or the murder of an innocent. The consideration of a possibility of such an occurrence, has caused Sir W. C. Smith, Bart. one of the Barons of the Exchequer, to study the Irish language, in which he has made great progress, and set a praise-worthy example to other gentlemen of the Bar. To the Physician several cases must have occurred where his scientific skill was baffled by his ignorance of the language in which only his patient could clearly point out the nature of his complaint. And every person who has dealings in the country, has daily proofs of the inconvenience arising from a want of the language of the people with whom he has to converse.

To remove the impediments which heretofore stood in the way of learning our language, I have compiled the Work now offered to the public, and have spared neither labour nor expense in making it as perfect as I could, tho' with very small encouragement given by my countrymen. Indeed in the articles of pecuniary or literary aid, I have but few obligations to confess. Of those from whom I have received more than half price, or in some few cases more than the full price of a single copy, I have none to name but the Earl of Charlemont, Baron Smith, the Rev. E. O'Reilly, principal of the Academy at Navan, and Sir W. Betham, King at Arms. Of literary assistance towards completing my Dictionary, I have none to acknowledge to the living, except to my invaluable friend, the Rev. M. P. Kinsela, late chaplain to the nunnery at Harold's Cross, and now retired to a convent of his order in Spain; he kindly pointed out to me the most of the Hebrew words which are found to agree with the Irish in the course of my Book. —BUT if my acknowledgments to the living be few, I am ready to confess my obligations to the dead. My collection of words from ancient glossaries, vocabularies, and other documents, is copious, and several hundreds of those words which I have added to the collections published in the Dictionaries of my predecessors, were collected, with a view to publication, by the late Mr. William Haliday, Junior, of Arran-quay. That young gentleman, after acquiring a knowledge of the ancient and modern languages usually taught in schools, enriched his mind with the acquisition of several of the Eastern languages, and made himself so perfect a master of the language of his native country, that he was enabled to publish a Grammar of it, in Dublin, in the year, 1808, under the fictitious signature of E. O'C. and would have published a Dictionary of the same language, if death had not put a stop to his career, at the early age of 23. To the liberality of Doctor Elrington, the present Provost, and to the Fellows of Trinity College, who gave me the privilege of their library, I am indebted for a great number of words to be found in the body of my Dictionary, besides the principal part of the words now in common use, that are to be found in my Supplement. These I collected from a large MS. Dictionary in the possession of the College, compiled by Teig O'Nachten for publication in the year 1739. When I was making my collection it never occurred to me, that the words daily used in common conversation, and familiar to myself, might have been omitted by former Compilers; and taking it for granted that they were not omitted, I never examined further into the matter, but proceeded with the printing of my Work, and had nearly finished it before I perceived the omission. As I was desirous to make my Book as full and perfect as I could, I determined on publishing a Supplement, and to insert in it such words from O'Nachten's Dictionary as had been omitted, and a number of other words that I had collected since my beginning to print, and which of course could not have been inserted in their proper places. Upon every occasion when I found it necessary to consult the MSS. in the Library, I have experienced the most obliging attention from the Librarians, the Rev. Doctors Barret and Wilson, for which they have my sincere thanks.

As my Work was intended to answer in some degree for a Dictionary of the Scottish Gaelic, as well as the Irish, I have retained in it several words from Shaw's Dictionary, and a number of others which I collected from modern Scottish publications. Some of these I have marked Sh. and Sc. and others that are not so marked will be discovered by their orthography. It is to be observed, however, that all those words so marked are not confined to the Scottish dialect; many of them I have since found in O'Nachten's Dictionary, to which Shaw had access, and in other modern books, particularly those written by Authors of the North of Ireland.

IN the course of the Dictionary some words will be found differently spelled, as Ean, a bird; Scríobhadóir, a writer, &c.; which again occur at Eun and Sgríobhadóir. This is unnecessary to those who are acquainted with Irish books, but to learners it cannot fail to be useful.

IN the compilation of my Grammar I have found great assistance from those of my predecessors, and have blended so much of their rules with my own observations, as I conceive may be useful in giving a general idea of Irish Grammar. In the Grammars of the Rev. Doctors Stewart, Neilson and O'Brien, and those of the late Mr. Haliday, and my friend Mr. Lynch, much has been done to reduce the grammatical rules of O'Mulloy, M'Curtin and Vallancy to a standard; but still much remains to be done. It was not the work of a few individuals of one nation or one century, that established the grammar rules of the Greek and Latin languages upon a permanent basis; it has been the work of ages, and to which the learned of various nations have contributed. If such was the case with dead languages, perfection is not to be expected from a few essays on the Irish, which is a living language, and therefore subject to mutation.

IN my Grammar I have ventured to deviate a little from those who have gone before me, with what degree of propriety it is for others to decide. In taking the initial changes of nouns as the rule by which to discriminate their declensions, my friend Doctor O'Brien has gone before me; but I have made one inflexion more than he has; because, as the initial changes of nouns beginning with consonants naturally divides them into two declensions, so the variation from the primary to the aspirate form to which nouns beginning with vowels are subject, divides them into two declensions also. In giving but one conjugation to Irish verbs, I differ from Doctors Stuart and O'Brien; but I do so upon the authority of all our ancient MSS. in which the first person singular, Indicative Mood, active voice, always terminates in aim or im, and the initial changes are the same, whether a broad or a slender vowel be the last in the root.

THOSE that are acquainted with the Press, will be inclined to excuse a few typographical errors which do not materially affect the sense, and of which description are, I hope, the most of the errors to be found uncorrected in my Work. If it shall be found that I have omitted much, let it be remembered that I have added a great deal; and if my Work is not so full or perfect as was expected, still it contains upwards of 20,000 words more than are contained in former Irish Lexicons, and consequently so much the nearer to perfection.

IN what I have done, my principal design was to render a service to my country, by giving facility to the study of our primeval history, and to the learning of a language, venerable for its antiquity, necessary to the philologist of every nation, and dear to every genuine Irishman. If the Volume I now offer to the Public shall meet with that approbation and support from my countrymen which I was once taught to expect, I will, with God's permission, commence Printing the IRISH-ENGLISH DICTIONARY, which is now nearly ready for the Press. If, on the contrary, it shall meet with disapprobation and neglect, I shall bow with respect to Public Opinion and sit down with the reflection, that, though I have not obtained success, I have endeavoured to deserve it.

CONCISE INTRODUCTION

TO

IRISH GRAMMAR.

ORTHOGRAPHY.

CHAP. I.

Of the Letters.

THE modern Irish Aibghitir, or Alphabet, consists of seventeen letters, besides the aspirate h. They are arranged by our Grammarians in the following order.

À, a. ß, b. C, c. ð, d. E, e. f, f. G, g. 1, l. M, m. N, n. O, o. p, p. R, r. S, s. T, t. U, u, or r, h.

Some of our modern Grammarians exclude h from the catalogue of our letters, and value it only as a mark of aspiration. But it is ranked amongst the letters both in the Uraiceacht and the book of Oghams, and in several of our oldest manuscripts it is prefixed to the genitive case singular of all feminine nouns, beginning with vowels; and to all the cases of the plural number, except the genitive, of nouns of either gender that have vowels for their initials. It is however, necessary to observe, that in many of our ancient books this character does not appear, and its place is supplied by a dot placed over the initial vowels before which the aspirate is required.

In the Uraicecht the characters Ź and q are ranked amongst the letters, and are frequently used in old vellum manuscripts, though totally rejected in modern writings. The first represents the sound of sd, and the latter that of cu. In ancient manuscripts are also to be found the characters K and X; the first is used as a contraction for ca and cath, and the latter as a numeral for ten.

The Alphabet is divided into two principal classes, vowels and consonants. These are again divided into broad and slender vowels, and mutable and immutable consonants. The broad vowels are a, o, r, the slender e and i. The mutable consonants are such as by placing a dot over them, or writing the aspirate h after them, lose their original simple sound and take another, and in some cases become entirely silent. The immutable consonants are l, n and r; and are so called because they never admit of a dot or an h to be placed over them or after them in writing, although they vary their sounds in pronunciation. The mutable consonants are b, c, d, f, g, m, p, q and t.

So much has been said on the sounds and powers of the letters, in the remarks prefixed to each letter in the course of the Dictionary, that but little is necessary to be said on those subjects here. There are, however, some things so slightly touched upon, that some further remarks may be necessary and useful.

CHAP. II.

Of the Vowels.

THE rule Caol le Caol and leathan le leathan, treated of in the remarks on the letter A, was first invented for the sake of Euphony, and is natural enough in most cases, the tongue itself naturally seeking such facilities. But it has been carried too far, and some of the diphthongs that are found in most of our old books have been unnecessarily sacrificed to it by modern writers. For I cannot perceive any more violence offered to the tongue in pronouncing saeradh, naebhadh, or noebeadh, as formerly written, than in pronouncing saoradh, or naomhadh according to the modern orthography.

This rule of writing a slender with a slender, and a broad with a broad vowel, is not always observed in the manner prescribed. For we find that some, even of our best writers, will frequently make the leading vowel of a subsequent syllable unnaturally broad or slender, to make it correspond with the final vowel of the syllable preceding it. Thus amhuil and ach are improperly written eamhuil and each in the terminations faileamhuil and gangaideach, deceitful, to make them correspond with the final vowels in the primitive words faill and gangaid, deceit. In like manner oir, a common termination to derivative nouns, is written oir, when its primitive ends in a slender vowel, as coillteoir a woodman, cairpiheoir a charioteer, derived from coill a wood, and cairp or cairb, a chariot.

The vowels of each class, when unaccented, may be indifferently written one for the other, as bolg a bag may be written balg or bulg; and faile welcome, may as properly be written failli.

The vowels have three quantities, long, short and medium. The first belongs to such vowels as are made long by the usage of the language, or by poetic licence. The usage of the language made the same vowel sometimes long and sometimes short, to discriminate words similarly written, but of different meanings. In writing the long vowels are distinguished from the short by having an accent placed over them, called síne fada, as in bás death, srón, a nose, dúid, an ear, béd, a deed, mín, fine; whilst those that are short have no distinctive mark, as bas, the palm of the hand, droch, bad, tum, a bush, fed, a narration, and min, meal. The same rule applies to such diphthongs as vary in their pronunciation, as in féar, grass, and fear, a man. The medium or middle quantity belongs to vowels and diphthongs coming before the double letters ll, nn, rr, and ng, as in ball, a limb, ceann, a head, dorr, anger, and long, a ship.—There are no quiescent final vowels.

It is asserted by all our modern grammarians, that, vowels are never written double, and that more than three vowels can never follow each other in one word without the intervention of a consonant. But this rule is not without exception. In the Annals of the four Masters, and in all our more ancient books aa very frequently occurs, and beaibh, and other words of that kind are not uncommon in the works of some of our best writers. These latter are generally, although perhaps improperly, divided by the insertion of a mortified d, g, or t, as, beodhaibh, breoghaibh, ceothaibh, &c.

For the elision or suppression of vowels, see Syntax at the Article.

The diphthongs are thirteen in number, ae, ai, ao, ea, ei, eo, eu, ia, io, iu, oi, ua and ui; of these ae, ao, eo, eu, ia, iu and ua are always long, and the remainder are sometimes long and sometimes short.

The triphthongs are five aoi, eor, iai, iui, and uoi, always long.

It is impossible to give a correct representation of the sounds of Irish diphthongs or triphthongs by any usual combination of English vowels. They can be perfectly learned only by the ear. But they are represented as nearly as possible by corresponding English sounds in the grammar of the Rev. PAUL O'BRIEN, and in the For-oideas of Mr. PATRICK LYNCH, to which works I beg leave to refer the reader.

The diphthongs au, and oe, and the triphthong aei, are common in ancient MSS. tho' rejected by modern writers.

CHAP. III.

Of the consonants and their divisions, combinations and influence on each other.

BESIDES the division of the consonants into mutables and immutables, they are again divided into labials, as b, m, p, f. dentals, d and t, palatals c and g liquids l, n, r, s.

Consonants are subject to aspiration, eclipsis, suppression and extinction.

Aspiration has been already spoken of in the first Chapter,

Eclipsis is when a radical or primary consonant loses its sound by the intervention of some adventitious letter. All the mutable consonants are subject to eclipsis except m. S never suffers eclipsis but when it is preceded by the article an, and followed by l, n, or r.—See Syntax at pronouns.

b	m , as in beata , life, ar mbeata
c	c or g , ciall , reason ar cciall , or ar gciall
d	n , doctar hope ar ndoctar
f	b or p , flaite , a prince, ar bflaite or ar pflaite
g	n , gort , a garden, ar ngort
p	b or p , pean , a pen, ar bpean , or ar ppean
r	t , rlat , a rod, ar trlat
t	d or t , trm , a bush, ar dtrm , or ar ttrm .

When f is eclipsed by f or b, before a consonant or a slender vowel, it always sounds as v. But when it is followed by a broad vowel, it sometimes sounds as u or w.

It is to be remembered, that, although the adventitious letter only is sounded, the possessive letter must never be omitted in writing.

The same accidents which cause eclipsis in consonants require n to be prefixed to initial vowels as, ór, gold, ar n'ór, our gold, &c.

Suppression is when an aspirated consonant is restored to its genuine pronunciation by the extinction of its aspirate. This happens when consonants of the same kind capable of aspiration meet together in compound words, or when one of them ends one word and the other begins the next, the first of them whether aspirated or not suppresses the aspiration of the other. Thus gob mhór, lámh bheag, taobh mhín, slad dhoilge, sop fhliuch, bric chorra, slat tim, &c. must be pronounced gob mór, lámh beag, taobh mín, slad doilge, sop fliuch, bric corra, slat tim, &c. L, N and S coming before d or t causes suppression of the aspirate, as ceann dhubh, gontha, fuil thais dhearg, must be pronounced ceann dubh, gonthu, fuil tais dearg.

Extinction of consonants happens when two letters of the same kind meet in a compound word, so that one of them terminates one part, and the second begins the next, in which case only one of them is pronounced. Thus searbh and bhlus being joined will sound searbh-las.

The consonants c, f, l, n, p, and t are sometimes written double. The writers of the middle ages often wrote mm, and ss, but these are rejected by the best writers as not answering any purpose of the language.

Cc sounds

Cc sounds as g, ff as bh, pp as b, and tt as d. These are never used but in the beginning of words, except cc, which is sometimes used in the termination. Ll, nn, and rr cause the vowels that precede them, to be pronounced full and strong; they never begin a word, but frequently occur in the middle and end of words.

When l comes after d, or before n in a word, the d and n lose their sound, and the word is pronounced as if written with ll; as codla sleep, brigh na colna power of the flesh, where codla and colna are pronounced as if written colla,

In like manner, when n follows d, the d loses its sound, as ceadna is pronounced as if written ceanna.

Under this head may be classed the character ng, called ngedal, or ngiatal. It has a sound peculiar to itself, which can be learned by the ear only. The ng in the english word long has some faint resemblance to it, but the Irish ng is more nasal. When it happens to come in the middle of a word, as in caingean, it must be pronounced as if written cai-ngean.

ETYMOLOGY.

Of the parts of Speech

The ancient Irish reckoned only three parts of Speech, pearsa, ainm, and iairmbearla, person, noun, and adjunct. Person included the verb, i. e. the agent and his action, or passiveness; Noun, the name of all objects and instruments of action; and Adjunct included the circumstances of time, place, manner, &c.

The Moderns reckon ten parts of Speech, viz. Article, Noun, Adjective, Pronoun, Verb, Participle, Adverb, Preposition, Interjection, and Conjunction.

Of the Article.

The Irish has but one Article, an; it is equivalent to the English definite article the. It has only one variation, na, which it suffers in the genitive case singular of the feminine gender, and in all cases of the plural, whether masculine or feminine. When the article follows the prepositions do or o, fa or fo, the a is extinguished in the article, and we usually say and write do'n, o'n, fa'n, fo'n. It is thus declined,

SINGULAR.		PLURAL.

Gen. an , Masc. na Fem. of the ,		Gen. na
Dat. do'n ,	to the ,	Dat. do na
Acc. an	the ,	Acc. na
Voc.		Voc.
Abl. o'n , or ua an , from the		Abl. ona , or ua na

Of the Noun.

To Nouns belong number, gender, case, and declension.

There are but two numbers belonging to Irish nouns; the singular and plural.

The genders are two; masculine and feminine.

Notwithstanding the many rules laid down by different Grammarians, for discovering the genders of Irish nouns it is still a matter of difficulty and uncertainty.

MA C CURTIN says, the most infallible way to discover the gender, is to observe the difference between e and i, he and she; for when e agrees with the noun, it is masculine, and when i agrees with it, it is feminine; and in proof of this, he quotes the following rann, or verse, ar i an gabar, gíó é an teac, ar i an caora, maó mēvleac, ar i an corra, maó ciobra cion, ar é an meantán, maó boiníon.

But this rule is far from infallible; and there are thousands of nouns in our language, that are sometimes declined as masculine, and sometimes as feminine, even by our best writers. Thus the word Abhal, an apple, is made feminine by a writer of eminence, who writes, ar i ro an abal, whilst the writers of the books of Leacan, Ballymote, and the Irish Bible, make it masculine. By this it appears there are nouns common to both genders.

The distinction of genders is perhaps best known, by placing the article before the noun in the genitive case singular; if an agrees with the noun, it is masculine, if na, it is feminine.—Example, ymear an cnám, the marrow of the Bone. Mas.

méad na láime, the bulk of the hand. Fem.

Nouns beginning with vowels require a t prefixed in the nom. and acc. cases, if they be of the masculine gender, but feminine nouns require h to be prefixed to the genitive; as an t'athair the father, Masc. na hinse of the Island, Fem.

All proper names of men, and in general all names of offices belonging to men alone, and all nouns signifying males, as feor a man, tarbh a bull, are masculine.

All proper names of women, offices peculiar to women, nouns signifying females, and the proper names of countries and rivers are feminine.

Diminutives ending in ean or an are masculine, as bealan, a little mouth; cuislean, a small vein; those ending in eog, in, or og, are feminine, as dreiseog, a bramble cludog, a concealment; cluigin, a little bell.

Derivatives

Derivatives ending in ach, aidhe, uidhe, aire, each, oir, or coir, are masculine, as marcach, a horseman; gadaidhe, a thief; fogluidhe, a robber; sealgair, a hunter; airg each, a plunderer; figheadoir, a weaver; slanaightheoir a saviour.

Derivative or abstract nouns ending in as or eas, are masculine, as donas, misfortune; sonas, happiness; tinneas, sickness. Those taking an increase and ending in a slender vowel, are feminine; as buaine, perpetuity, doimhne, depth, profundity.

Abstract nouns terminating in acht or eachd, are feminine.

Most nouns whose last vowel is broad, or an e followed by a consonant, are masculine; and those whose last vowel is small, are feminine.

Nouns compounded of two substantives, always retain the gender of the latter, as bainliagh, a doctress, and bainrigh, a queen, are counted masculine, because liagh, a physician, and righ, a king, are of the masculine gender; but righbhean and liaighbhean, words of the same meaning, are considered as feminine, because bean a woman, is of the feminine gender.

Of Case and Declension.

The ancient Irish acknowledged but three cases of nouns, called ainm, taoibhreim, and tuilreim; nominative, genitive, and dative. The moderns reckon six cases; nominative, genitive, dative, accusative, vocative, and ablative. Of these the accusative is the same as the nominative, and the ablative is like the dative. The vocative of masculine nouns is generally like the genitive, but the vocative of feminines is sometimes like the nominative.

EXAMPLE.

Nom. fear , a man,	Nom. bean , a woman,
Gen. fhir , of a man,	Gen. mna , of a woman,
Voc. a fhir o man.	Voc. a bhean , o woman.

Most of our modern grammarians having adopted the Latin as the model of their grammars, have given us, five declensions, six cases, and two numbers, in exact conformity to their model. Had they examined with an impartial eye, the very different structure of the two languages, they could hardly avoid perceiving the impropriety of making one, a standard for the other, particularly in what regards declension and syntax.

Declension is a statement of the changes a noun undergoes in the different relations of persons and things to each other, either active or passive, singular or plural. The nominative and the accusative express the agent, and the immediate object of his action. The nominative with the genitive express the relation of one thing to another. The nominative and dative convey with the agent, the motives and instruments of his action, to whom, for whom, or with what view; as may also the accusative and genitive, with the addition of some particles. The four cases are sufficient for all these purposes, and the ablative in Irish being the same as the dative, is superfluous.

The latin grammarians finding that all the nouns in their language, except some heteroclites, had but five varieties in their terminations, very properly made five, the number of their declensions. But it was very injudicious in our grammarians, to limit the number of their declensions to five, or to take the varieties in the terminations of our nouns, as the standard by which to measure those declensions. For the changes in Irish nouns are not confined to varieties merely final, like the Latin; but like the Hebrew and other oriental tongues, its initial variations are of the greatest importance.

In Irish, there are several nouns consisting of a single letter, as a, a hill, a cart; e, pity; i, an island; o, an ear, &c. and there are thousands of nouns terminating in vowels, which, with the exception of a few heteroclites, never vary their terminations, in any of the cases of either numbers, except the dative plural.

EXAMPLE,—bogha, a bow.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom. an bogha , the bow,	Nom. na bogha , the bows,
Gen. an bhogha , of the bow,	Gen. na mbogha ,
Dat. don bhogha , to the bow,	Dat. dona boghaibh ,
Acc. an bogha , the bow.	Acc. na bogha .

To this, and other nouns of this description, MAC CURTIN and others give a second plural, as boghadha. But this is only the second plural of the poets, and called by them, ard iolradh, the treating of which, belongs to prosody.

The initials of all nouns, whether vowels or consonants, are subject to variation in different cases, except those beginning with the immutable consonants, or with d or t following the article. On this account, and for the reasons abovementioned, I think that our initial variations should determine the number of our declensions, and I shall call that class of nouns, beginning with vowels, that take no variation in the initials of the cases of the singular number, but are aspirated in the genitive, the first declension. Nouns beginning with vowels, that require t prefixed to the nominative and accusative cases singular, and allow no initial change in the genitive singular, I shall call, the second declension. All nouns beginning with mutable consonants, that suffer aspiration in the nominative and accusative singular, and preserve their simple powers in the genitive singular I call the third declension: and all nouns whose initials are aspirable consonants, but do not suffer aspiration in the nominative or accusative singular, and are aspirated in the genitive singular, are of the fourth declension.

Before we proceed to give examples of these declensions, it may be necessary to notice the variations, to which initials are subject in gender and case; and also the variations, to which the terminations of nouns are sometimes liable.

1. Nouns of the feminine gender beginning with a vowel, suffer no change in the nominative and accusative singular, but require h prefixed to the genitive singular, and to all the cases of the plural, except the genitive, which takes n as a prefix.

2. All nouns masculine, beginning with a vowel, must have t prefixed in the nominative and accusative singular, suffer no change in the initial of the genitive singular, but take n in the genitive plural, and h in all the other cases of the plural.

3. All nouns feminine beginning with mutable consonants, except those beginning with s, must be aspirated in in the nominative, dative, and accusative cases singular, and retain their natural powers in the genitive singular. In the plural, the leading consonant suffers no aspiration in any of the cases, but it must be eclipsed in the genitive, if it be one of those consonants that suffer eclipsis.

4. Nouns of the masculine gender beginning with aspirable consonants, except s, must preserve their natural sounds in the nominative and accusative singular, and be aspirated in the genitive and dative. In all the cases of the plural, except the genitive, the initial preserves its natural power, but in the genitive it must be eclipsed unless it be an m or an s.

When s is the initial of feminine nouns, and followed by a vowel, or by l or r, it requires t prefixed in all cases of the singular except the genitive. In the genitive singular, and in all the cases of the plural it preserves its natural powers.

When s is the initial of a masculine noun, and followed by a vowel, or by l or r it suffers no variation or prefix in the nom. or accus. singular, but must have t prefixed to the genitive and dative. In all the cases of the plural it preserves its natural powers.

Nouns beginning with d or t having the article prefixed suffer no aspiration, but are eclipsed in the genitive plural.

Nouns beginning with s, followed by b, c, d, g, m, n, p or t, suffer no initial change in any of the cases.

Thus we see that the initial variations of nouns serve to distinguish their gender, number and case.

L, N and R, suffer no change in writing when they are the initials of nouns; but the same accidents which cause variation in the sound of the other consonants, cause a variation in the pronunciation of these letters, according to the gender of the noun to which they belong.

Some writers make use of eclipsis instead of aspiration in the dative singular of their nouns, if the initial be susceptible of eclipsis. Thus for do'n chrann, they write do'n gcrann.

Having given the most remarkable initial variations to which nouns are subject, it may be necessary here to give some account of the changes which the last syllables of nouns undergo in declension.

Regular nouns of the masculine gender ending in unaspirated consonants seldom change their final letter; but if the last vowel be broad it suffers caolughadh, or attenuation, by having an i inserted after it; as, nominative singular, brat, a garment, fód, a sod, casúr, a hammer; gen. sin. brait, fóid and cásúir.

Regular nouns of the feminine gender terminating in unaspirated consonants require e subjoined in the genitive, and if the last vowel be broad in the nominative it will also require attenuation as well as increase in the genitive; as nominative singular tir, a country, grib, mire, bas, a palm, cos, a leg; gen. sin. tire, gribe, baise or boise, and coise.

Regular nouns ending with an aspirated d or g, seldom vary their terminations in any of the cases of the singular number.

When regular nouns terminate their nominative singular in c aspirated, the genitive singular generally terminates in an aspirated g; but there are some nouns of one syllable that terminate both cases in ch, as each, a horse, laoch, a hero, croch, saffron; genitive singular, eich, laoich, croich or croigh.

The quantity or length of the vowels or diphthongs in the nominative singular is preserved throughout all the other cases in both numbers.

Words having a or o, for their last vowel, are often irregular in their attenuation, and the diphthong ea is generally changed to ei, as nominative singular, mac, a son, biadh, food, sliabh, a mountain, leac, a flag, crann, a tree, sop, a wisp, easbog, bishop, cnoc, a hill, will become, in the genitive singular meic or mic, bidh, sleibh, lice or leice, crainn or croinn, soip or suip, easboig or easbuig, and cnoic or cnuic.

Some nouns of one syllable having one short vowel, or a short diphthong, terminating their nominatives with consonants, require an a subjoined to the final consonant in the genitive singular. But these, our ancient grammarians considered irregular. See TABLE, No. 2.

Nouns ending in ir in the nominative singular, except derivatives ending in oir, if they be of the masculine gender, will make their genitive singular in ar or ara; feminines will make their genitive singular in a, ach or acha. See TABLE No. 2.

Nouns of two or more syllables, ending with an aspirated consonant in the nominative singular, seldom vary their terminations in any of the cases except the Dative plural. Some however, do take an e subjoined to the genitive singular, as foghluidh, a robber, genitive foghluidhe. Some transpose their final consonant, and if it be a d, the d upon variation becomes t as teangadh, a tongue, teangtha tongues. Some nouns terminating their nominatives singular in vowels take na or ana, as an increase in the genitive singular and in the nominative and accusative plural. See TABLE, No. 2.

Substantives ending in im or idhm generally make their plurals in anna.

Some nouns ending in amh, have different forms for their genitive singular, as, nominative singular, breitheamh, a judge, genitive singular breithimh or breitheamhuin.

In all regular nouns the dative singular generally terminates like the nominative.

The dative plural of nouns of one syllable frequently terminates like the nominative plural, as na fir, the men, dona fir, to the men, but nouns increasing in their nominative plural, terminate their dative plural in ibh; as crub, a paw, cruba, paws, dona crubaibh, to the paws; suile, eyes, dona suilibh, to the eyes.

FORMATION OF THE CASES OF REGULAR NOUNS.

The gender of a noun causes the principal variation in its initial, and in the changes to which the vowel in the last syllable is sometimes liable. A noun of the feminine gender, beginning with a vowel, suffers no variation in the initial of any of the cases of the singular number, except the genitive, which requires an h prefixed. Masculine nouns singular, require t prefixed to the nominative and accusative cases, but the genitive and dative cases suffer no initial change. In the plural of either genders n must be prefixed to the genitive, and h to all the other cases.

Nouns feminine, beginning with mutable consonants, except s, suffer aspiration in the nominative, dative, and accusative singular, but never vary the initial of the genitive singular. Masculine nouns beginning with such consonants suffer no change in the nominative or accusative singular, but suffer aspiration in the genitive and dative singular. In the plural of both genders the initial consonant suffers no variation in any of the cases, except the genitive which must be eclipsed, unless it be an m or s.

Nouns feminine, beginning with s, followed by a vowel, require t prefixed to the nominative and accusative singular, but make no change in the genitive singular. Masculine nouns of this description suffer no change in the initial of the nominative or accusative singular, but require t prefixed to the genitive singular. In the plural of both genders the initial suffers no variation in any of the cases.

Nouns of the masculine gender ending in unaspirated consonants and having their last vowel broad in the nominative singular require an i added to the vowel, or the vowel or diphthong changed for an i in the genitive singular; as crann, a tree, ceann, a head, make the genitive singular, crainn and cinn. Feminine nouns require the same changes as the masculine in the final vowel, but increase by the addition of e to the final consonant, as cíoch, the breast, scalg, a chase: make cíche and seilge, in the genitive singular. Nouns having éa, or eu, in the nominative singular, make eoí in the genitive singular, as méar, a finger, sgeul, a story, become upon variation meoir, and sgeoil. Those having ia in the last syllable of the nominative singular, change ia into ei, in the genitive singular.

The dative singular generally terminates like the nominative singular in both genders. But the initial of the dative having the article prefixed, is sometimes aspirated and sometimes eclipsed according to the custom of different provinces, as cos, a foot, do'n chos, or do'n gcós, to the foot. Some nouns have two datives in both numbers, as fear a man, dative singular, fear or fir: dative plural, feara, or fearaibh.

The nominative and accusative plural is generally like the genitive singular, and the genitive plural is like the nominative singular. Some nouns transpose the final consonant in the nominative plural as geimheal a fetter, makes geimhle fetters.

The dative plural is formed by adding aibh or ibh, to the nominative singular, as sagart, a priest, do na sagartaibh.

Some nouns that transpose their final consonant in the genitive singular, form their dative plural by adding aibh or ibh, to that genitive, as, ualach, a burden, genitive singular, ualcha; dative plural, ualchaibh.—The ablative is the same as the dative in both numbers.

REGULAR NOUNS

DECLINED WITH THE ARTICLE.

First declension, Feminines having vowels for their initial.

In this declension the genitive singular requires h to be prefixed. The nominative, dative and accusative cases singular, suffer no variation. In the plural, n must be prefixed to the genitive, and h to all the other cases.

EXAMPLE.

Oigh, a virgin.

SINGULAR.

Nom. an oigh, the virgin.
 Gen. na hoigh, of the virgin.
 Dat. do'n oigh, to the virgin.

PLURAL.

Nom. na hogha, the virgins.
 Gen. na nogh, of the virgins.
 Dat. dona hoghaibh, to the virgins.

Acc. an oigh, the virgin.

Acc. na hogha, the virgins.

Second

Second declension, Masculines beginning with vowels.

In this declension the nominative and accusative singular require t prefixed, the genitive singular suffers no variation. In the plural n is prefixed to the genitive, and all the other cases require h prefixed.

EXAMPLE.

Jasg, a fish.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom. an tiasg , the fish.	Nom. na héisc , hiasca , the fishes.
Gen. an éisc .	Gen. na n-iasc .
Dat. do'n iasg .	Dat. dona hiascaibh , hiasca .
Acc. an tiasg .	Acc. na héisc , hiasca .

Third declension, Feminines beginning with consonants.

In this declension all mutable consonants except, d, s or t, must be aspirated in the nominative, dative and accusative singular. In the genitive, the initial suffers no variation. In the plural number the leading consonant suffers no change in any of the cases except the genitive, and in that case it must be eclipsed if it be one of those consonants that suffers eclipsis.

EXAMPLE.

Colam, a dove.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom. an cholam , the dove.	Nom. na colaime , or colama .
Gen. na colaime , or colama .	Gen. na gcolam .
Dat. do'n cholam , do'n colaime , or do'n gcolam .	Dat. dona colamaibh .
Acc. an cholam .	Acc. na colaime , or colama .

In this declension nouns beginning with s, followed by a vowel or by l or r, must have t prefixed to all the cases of the singular, except the genitive.

Sigh, a sprite.

Nom. an tsigh , the sprite.	Nom. na sighe .
Gen. na sighe .	Gen. na sigh .
Dat. do'n tsigh .	Dat. do na sighibh .
Acc. an tsigh .	Acc. na sighe .

Slat, a rod.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom. an tslat , the rod.	Nom. na slaite .
Gen. na slaite .	Gen. na slat .
Dat. do'n tslat .	Dat. do na slataibh .
Acc. an tslat .	Acc. na slaite .

Fourth declension, Masculines beginning with consonants.

In this declension all initial aspirable consonants, except s, followed by a vowel, or by l or r, must be aspirated in the gen. sing. and retain their natural powers in the nominative and accusative singular. The initial of the dative singular must be aspirated or eclipsed. In the plural number the initial suffers no variation in any of the cases except the genitive which must be eclipsed.

EXAMPLE.

Cneas, the skin.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom. an cneas , the skin.	Nom. cneis , cnis .
Gen. an chneis , an chnis .	Gen. na gcneas , or ccneas .
Dat. do'n chneas , chnios .	Dat. do na cneasuibh .
Acc. an cneas .	Acc. cneis , cnis .

In this declension substantives beginning with s, followed by a vowel or by l or r, suffer no variation in the initials of the nominative and accusative singular, but require t prefixed to the genitive and dative singular. The initial suffers no variation in any of the cases of the plural number.

EXAMPLE.

Sop, a wisp.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom. an sop , the wisp.	Nom. na soip or sopa .
Gen. an tsoip , or an tsuip .	Gen. na sop .
Dat. do'n tsop , or tsuip .	Dat. do na sopaibh .
Acc. an sop .	Acc. na soip .

Sruth, a learned man.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom. an sruth , the learned man.	Nom. na sruith , srotha .
Gen. an tsruith , tsrotha .	Gen. na sruth .
Dat. do'n tsruith .	Dat. do na sruthaibh .
Acc. an sruth .	Acc. na sruith .

OF ADJECTIVES.

Adjectives, like substantives, suffer changes in their initials and terminations which mark their relation to other words.

The same accidents that cause variation in the initials of substantives influence the initials of adjectives.

When the adjective is absolute, and precedes its substantive, it suffers no variation in the singular number, whether the gender of the subsequent noun be masculine or feminine. As, Is scéimheach an fear, is scéimheach an bhean.

When the adjective precedes the noun it suffers no change in its termination.

Adjectives ending with vowels never vary their terminations in any case.

Adjectives beginning with vowels and preceding their substantives, require a t prefixed to the nominative, dative and accusative, singular masculine and to the genitive feminine, and to nominative and dative plural of both genders.

Adjectives following their substantives, and having mutable consonants for their initials, (except s, d, or t, following a noun ending with n,) must be aspirated in the nominative, accusative and vocative singular, feminine gender, and in the genitive, dative and vocative, singular, masculine; in the plural number the genitive feminine must be aspirated, and the genitive singular must be eclipsed.

Adjectives following their substantives, and terminating in immutable consonants, and having their last vowel broad in the nominative singular, and being of the masculine gender, will require an i placed after the broad vowel, or the broad vowel changed for an i in the genitive singular. In the nominative, dative, and accusative singular it will take a broad increase, and the genitive must be like the nominative singular. Adjectives of this description belonging to nouns of the feminine gender, will take a small increase in the genitive singular, and a broad increase in all the cases of the plural except the genitive, which must be like the nom. singular.

Adjectives following their substantive and having an i for their last vowel before an immutable consonant in the nominative singular, take no change in the genitive masculine, culine, take a small increase in the genitive feminine and in the nominative, dative, and accusative plural of both genders. The genitive plural is like the nominative singular.

Some few adjectives of one syllable, having their last vowel broad, take a broad increase in the genitive feminine.

Adjectives declined with their noun and article.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

In our ancient manuscripts are to be found various forms of comparison, as glas, green, comparative, glaise, glaiside, and glaisither, greener or more green. This last form is not used by modern Irish writers. Writers of the Scottish Gaelic use the second form, but they cut off the final e, as trom, heavy, truim or trúimid, heavier.

There are but few adjectives of more than one syllable that admit of this second degree of comparison.

The comparative most commonly used by the moderns is formed by adding an e to the termination of the positive, if its last vowel be slender, or by attenuating the last vowel if it be broad, and adding e to its termination; as mín, smooth, míne, smoother; garbh, rough, gairbhe, rougher. Ni sa or ni bhus, contracted into níos, is often prefixed to this form of comparison, as níos míne, níos gairbhe.

The superlative is of the same form as the common comparative, having the affirmative as prefixed; as as míne, or as míne air bith, the finest that is.

There is a superlative very common in use of the same form as the positive; as geal, white, roigheal whitest. But the particle ro, cannot be strictly considered as a mark of the superlative, no more than the particles an, fír, sár or ur, which only express an eminent degree of quality; as, ro laidir, very strong, anbhoichd, very poor; fír mhaith, perfectly good, sár dhearg, excessively red, ur íseal, very humble.

The following adjectives are irregular in comparison.

POSITIVE.

COMPARATIVE.

Maith, good.

fearr, feirre.

Olc, bad.

measa, miste.

Mor, great.

mo, moide.

Beag, little.

Fogus, near.

foicse, foisge.

OF PRONOUNS.

The pronouns are of seven kinds; Personal, Possessive, Relative, Demonstrative, Interrogative, Indefinite, and Compound.

The personal pronouns, are, me, I, tu, thou, e or se, he, i or si, she.

The possessive pronouns are, mo, my, do, thy, a, his, her, their. They are only the genitives of the personal pronouns.

The personal, the possessive, and the compound pronouns have a simple and an emphatic form. When the personal pronouns are emphatic, the first person singular requires se or ise subjoined, the second person sa, the third si, sin, or san. The first person plural requires e subjoined, the second person se, and the third san, as mise myself, tusa yourself, sésin or ésean, himself, isi, sisi, herself, inne, or sinne, ourselves, sibhse, yourselves, and siadsan or iadsan, themselves.

When possessive pronouns are emphatic the increase is not made to the pronoun but subjoined to the substantive immediately following it. The increase to all the persons of the singular number, and to the second person plural is sa; the increase of the first and third person plural, is ne and san. These are commonly united to the noun, but would be more properly connected with it by a hyphen; as mo lámh-sa, my hand, or ar láimh-ne, ar láimh san, our hands.

The word fein, self, own, is subjoined to both personal and possessive pronouns; as me fein, tu fein, my-

OF VERBS.

There are four kinds of verbs; Active, Passive, Impersonal, and Neuter.—The Impersonals have always a passive termination; the Neuters have no passive voice.

To verbs belong person, number, tense, and mood.

The persons are three; I, thou, he she or it, singular; we, ye, they, plural.

The numbers are two; singular and plural.

The tenses are three; present, past, and future.

There are six moods; imperative, indicative, consuetudinal, potential, conditional, and infinitive.

There are three participles; present, past, and future.

Each of the tenses has a relative form, which is always governed by a relative pronoun expressed or understood.

When

When Verbs are emphatical, they take the emphatic encrease described under pronouns; as Gonamaoidne, let us wound. In ancient MSS. sum, som, seom, somh, sium or siumh is used as an encrease to the Verb, in the indicative past tense of both numbers; as ghniódhsum, he made, performed; ro báiseom, he died; fuairsum, he found; ro featsatsum, they related; gabhsatsomh, they took.

Verbs like nouns suffer variation in their initials and terminations. Their initial changes are caused by certain prefixed particles, expressed or understood; those on the terminations mark their inflexions, in person, number, tense, and mood.

If a Verb has for its initial a consonant that will suffer eclipsis, it must be eclipsed after the particles da, if; fa, for which; go, that; iar, after; nach, not; nocha, not; and the interrogative, an, whether; as da mbeidhinn, if I would be; an gceilim, do I conceal. Verbs beginning with vowels, and coming after any of these particles, will require n prefixed; as go n'iarrfaínn, until I require.

When a relative pronoun, expressed or understood, or the particles, ar, nachar or nar, gur, do, ro, ni, nir, or sul, come before a verb beginning with a mutable consonant, it must be aspirated in the active voice; as ar mhealais? didst thou deceive? In the passive voice the initial suffers no change from these particles. When do comes before f in the active voice, it drops the o and unites with the verb, as d'fhásadar, they grew; but in the passive voice the o must be written, as do faladhe se, he was enclosed. Where do is understood, aspiration takes place also in the active voice; as bhi, for do bhi, he was.

OF THE AUXILIARY VERBS.

There are five auxiliary Verbs, viz. as or is, it is; ta, is, it is; fuil, is, it is, bi or bidh, it is, exists; and raibh, was.

As or is, is only used in two tenses of the indicative, viz. is, is, and ba, was, which is sometimes written budh, and bo.

Is me, I am, or it is I; is tu, it is you; is e, it is he; is sinn, it is we; is sibh, it is ye; is siad, or iad, it is they.

Ba me or budh me, I was, it was I; ba tu, se, sinn, sibh, siad or iad.—Ba or budh is used in old MSS. for both preter and future tenses.

Fa is often used for ba, as fa hé an fear.

Interrogative present.

An me? is it I? an tu, an e. An sinn? is it we? an sibh, an iad or an siad.

Negative present.

Sing. 1. Ni me, (contracted from ni is e me), it is not me; 2. ni tu; 3. ni é, or ni hé. Plur. 1. Ni sinn, it is not us; 2. ni sibh; 3. ni hiad.

In old MSS. we find bai, boi, bui, and uoi, written for ba. Tá is used only the in present indicative, as táim, I am; táir, thou art; tá, he is; támaid, or támaoid, we are, tathaí, or tathaoi, ye are; táid, they are; or Sing. 1. tá me, I am; 2. ta tu; 3. ta se: Plur. 1. ta sinn; 2. ta sibh; 3. ta siad. It is used as the positive affirmative of bi. A is sometimes prefixed to the present tense, as atáim, I am; &c.

Fuil, is, it is, is to be found in most of its moods and tenses in old MSS. but in modern writings, and in the colloquial language, it is seldom used but in asking or answering a question.

Affirmative present.

Sing. 1. Fuilm, or fuil me, I am; 2. fuilir, or fuil tu; 3. fuil, or fuil se: Plur. 1. Fuilmid, or fuil sinn, we are; 2. fuilthidh, or fuil sibh; 3. fuilid, or fuilsiad.

Negative present.

Sing. 1. Ni bhfuilm, or ní'l me, I am not; 2. ni bhfuilir, or ní'l tu; 3. ni bhfuil sé, or ní'l se: Plur. 1. Ni bhfuilmid, ni bhfuil sim, or ní'lmid, we are not; 2. ni bhfuilthi, ni bhfuil sibh, or ní'l sibh; 3. ni bhfuil siad, or ní'l siad.

Present Interrogative.

1. A or an bhfuilm, or bhfuilm, am I; 2. a or an bhfuilir, or bhfuil tu; 3. a or an bhfuil se, or bhfuil: 1. A, or an bhfuilmaoid, or bhfuileam, are we; 2. a or an bhfuilsibh, or bhfuilsibh; 3. a or an bhfuilsiad, or bhfuilid.

Raibh, was, (contracted from ro bhi), is mostly used in asking or answering questions. It has only one tense.

Affirmative.

Raibhas, or raibh me, I was; raibhais, or raibh tu, thou wast; raibh, or raibh sé, he was: Rabhamar, raibh sinn, we were; rabhabhar, raibh sibh, ye were; rabhadar, raibh siad, they were.

The interrogative is the same as the affirmative, only placing the interrogative particle a or an before each person, as an raibh tu? were you?

The negative is also the same form, only prefixing ni, no, not, to each person, as ni rabhas, I was not.

Conjugation of bí, is:

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Bí, or bí tu, be thou; bídh, or bí sé, let him be; bídhis, bíodhmaíod, or bíodh sinn, let us be: bídhidh, bídh sibh, be ye; bíd, bídhid, bidis, or bidh siad, let them be.

PROHIBITIVE;—Ná bí, be not.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present tense, indefinite.

Bídhim, I be, I exist; bidhir, bídhin tu, you be; bídhin sé, he be; bíodhmur, bíodhmaoid, or bidhinn sin, we be; bíodhbhur, bídhinn sibh, ye be; bídhidh bídhinn siad, they be.

Present tense, positive.

Táim, ta me, I am; táir, taoir, or ta tu, thou art; tá se, ata, he is; támur, támuoid, tám, tá sinn, we are; ta bhur, tathaoi, ataoi, ta sibh, ye are; taíd, tá siad, they are. Or, as it is sometimes improperly conjugated; atáim, atá me, I am; ataoir, atá tu, thou art; ata sé, he is; atamaoid, atá sinn, we are; ataoi, atá sibh, ye are; atáid, they are.

Past tense.

Bhídhis, bhádhas, bhis, bhí me, bha me, or do bhios, do bhi me, I was; bhidheis, bhadhais, bhi tu or do bhadhais, do bhi tu, thou wast; bhi se, bha se, bhi, or do bhi se, he was; bhimur, bhamar bhí sinn, or do bhamur, do bhimur, do bhí sinn, we were; bhibhur, bhabhar, bhi sibh, or do bhíbhur, do bhábhar, do bhí sibh, ye were; bhídar, bhádhar, bhí siad, or do bhíodar, do bhádhar, do bhí siad, they were.

RELATIVE

RELATIVE FORM, do bhi; as, an fear do bhí, the man that is.

NEGATIVE, ni.

Future tense.

Biad, beíd, beídh me, I shall be; biadhair, beidhir, beidh tu, thou shalt be; beidh, beidh se, he shall be; béidhmur, biodhmaod, béim, béidhmí, beidhsinn, we shall be; béidhbhur, biadhaidh, beídh sibh, ye shall be; béidhid, biadhaid, beíd, they shall be.

RELATIVE, bhí; as, is me bhí.

CONSUEUDINAL MOOD.

Present tense.

Sing. 1. Béidhim, bí, or bidhinn me, I am usually; 2. bidhir or biann tu, bidhean tu; 3. bi, biann se or bedhean sé —; Plural. 1. bimaoí, biann sinn or bidhsinn, —; 2. bídhidh, or biann sibh —; 3. bidhid, bid or biann siad.

RELATIVE. Beidheas, bhí, bhídhéann; that usually is.

INTERROGATIVE. an mbídhéann.

NEGATIVE, ni, prefixed to each person.

Past tense.

Do bhínn, I was usually; do bhítha, —; do bhítheadh. Do bhínnis bhímaois, we were usually; do bhídhidh, —; do bhídis.

RELATIVE, do bhídh or do bhítheadh.

Future tense, wanting.

POTENTIAL MOOD.

Sing. 1. Bhéidhinn or bhéidhfínn or do bheinn, I would be; 2. bhéidheadh, —; 3. bhéidh sé. Plural, 1. Bhéidhsinn, we would be, —; 2. bhéidh sibh, —; 3. bhéidhdis, bhéidh siad.

The tenses of this mood may be formed, by prefixing as or is, for the present, ba for the past, and budh, for the future, to such words as coir, right, eigin, necessary, feidir, power, ability, &c. followed by the pronoun which should be the nominative case to the verb, and by the infinitive of the verb itself; or by tigim, I agree, consent, or caithfidh, it obliges, compels. As, is feidir liom abheith, I may be; ba chóir dhamh a bheith, I should have been; is éigin dhamh a bheith, I may be; ni thig liom a bheith, I cannot be; caithfidh me a bheith, I must be.

Past tense.

Sing. 1. Da mbéidhin or da mbéidh mé, if I were, —; 2. da mbeidheadh, da mbeidh tu, —; 3. da mbeidh or da mbeidh se. Plural, 1. Da mbeidh sinn, da mbeidhmaois, if we were; 2. da mbeidhthi, da mbeidh sibh, —; 3. da mbeidhdis, da mbeidh siad.

Future tense.

Sing. 1. Ma bhíom, if I shall be; 2. ma bhíonn tu —; 3. ma bhíonn se, —; Plural, 1. Ma bhíomaoid, ma bhíonn sinn, if we shall be; 2. ma bhíonn sibh; 3. ma bhíonn siad.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Do bheith, or a bheith, to be; ag béith, being; ar mbeith, on being; iar mbeith, having been; ar ti bheith, about to be, on the point of being; chum a bheith, to be, in order to be.

These latter tenses are the participles of this verb.

Do, is commonly prefixed to the past tense indicative and consuetudinal but it may be omitted.

OF REGULAR VERBS.

Formation of the tenses.

ACTIVE VOICE.

The root of the Verb is the second person singular, Imperative mood.

The Imperative mood suffers no change in the initial of the verb, but it varies in the terminations of its persons. The 3d pers. sing. is formed by adding adh, to the root; 1st pers. plur. ends in am, or amaoid; 2d, in aidh or aidhe; 3d, in aid or id.

INDICATIVE MOOD. The Verb suffers no initial change in any of the persons of the present or future tenses. The 1st person sing. ends in aim or im; 2nd, in air or ir; 3d, in aidh or idh, or in, an, with the pronoun subjoined. The first pers. plur. ends in mar, maoid, mid or am; the 2d, in bhar, thaoi, or thi; 3d, in aid or id. The Relative, ends in eas or as.

Past tense. If the initial of the verb be capable of aspiration, it must be aspirated in all the persons of both numbers, whether do, the sign of the past tense, be written or not. In the termination, the 1st pers. sing. takes as or eas; the 2d, ais or is; the 3d, is the same as the 2d sing. Imperative, with the pronoun subjoined; the 1st plur. takes am or amar, to the root of the verb, the 2d, abhar; the 3d, adar or sad. Or all the persons may be expressed by adding the proper pronouns to the root of the verb.—The Relative, is the same as the root.

Future tense. The 1st pers. sing. terminate in fad or fead; 2d in fair or fir; 3d in fad; the 1st plur. ends in fam, mar, maoid or mid; 2d, in faidhe; 3d, faid or fid. Or the persons of both numbers may be expressed by adding fa or fadh, to the root, and subjoining the proper pronouns. Sometimes f is not used either in writing or conversation, but this is a corruption that should be rejected, except in verbs of more than one syllable, which never take an f, but have eo in their second syllable, as eirigh, arise, eircachadh mé, I will arise.

CONSUEUDINAL MOOD. Present tense, generally like the present indicative.

Past tense. The initial requires aspiration. The termination of the 1st pers. sing. is inn; 2d, tha; 3d, adh; the 1st plur. ends in mais or maois, 2d, aidhe, 3d, aidis.—Relative, in adh.

POTENTIAL MOOD. Present tense, 1st pers. sing. ends in fainn, fínn or inn, 2d in fadh or fa, 3d, in fad; the 1st plur. in mais or maois; 2d, in faidh or fidh; 3d, in faidis or fidis.

CONDITIONAL MOOD. Has the same terminations in all its persons as the Potential.

INFINITIVE

INFINITIVE MOOD. This mood is generally formed by adding adh or eadh to the root; but there are several verbs that form their Infinitive differently.

PARTICIPLES. The initials of Participles suffer no variation in the present or future tenses. In the past tense the initial suffers either aspiration or eclipses, as the nature of the Letter may require. Participles are formed from the infinitive, by prefixing a or ag to the present, iar to the past, and air ti to the future.

CHANGES OF THE PASSIVE VOICE.

IMPERATIVE MOOD. All the persons of this mood have tar or tear in the termination, followed by the proper pronoun. Or they may be formed by the auxiliary bi or bidh and the past participle, as bidh me mealta, let me be deceived.

INDICATIVE MOOD. The present is formed by adding tar or thar, tear or thear, to the root; the past tense takes adh or eadh to the root; the future is formed, by adding, far, fadhar, faidhear, fir, fidhir, and sometimes ar, to the root.

CONDITIONAL MOOD. Present tense ends in tar; past tense in taidhe or ti.

POTENTIAL AND CONDITIONAL MOODS end in faidhe or fidhe.

INFINITIVE MOOD AND PARTICIPLES have ta, tha, te, or the, added to the root.

In the oral language, and in several of the old books, the passive voice is formed by the auxiliary verb táim, and the passive participle, as, táim lionta, or ta me lionta, I am filled.

In the following conjugations there are different forms given for each person. The first of each are those that are used in old MSS. and are mostly obsolete; the latter are those in common use.

Conjugation of Meall, deceive:

ACTIVE VOICE.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Sing. 2. Meall, deceive thou; 3. mealadh se, let him deceive;—Plur. 1. Mealam, mealamaoid, mealadh sinn, let us deceive; 2. mealaidhe, mealaidh sibh, deceive ye; 3. mealaid, mealaidis, mealaidh siad, let them deceive.

NEGATIVE, na, prefixed to each person, as, na meall, deceive not.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Present tense.

Sing. 1. Mealaim, I deceive; 2. mealair, mealann tu, —; 3. mealaidh, mealann se, —, Plur. 1. Mealam, mealamar, mealamaoid, mealann sinn, we deceive; 2. mealabhar, mealthaoi, mealann sibh, ye deceive; 3. mealaid, mealann siad, they deceive.

RELATIVE, mealas, that deceives.

INTERROGATIVE, an, a or nach; as, an mealaim,

NEGATIVE, ni, as, ni mealaim.

Past tense.

Sing. 1. Mhealas, mheall mé, I deceived; 2. mhealais, mheall tu, —; 3. mheall, mheall se: Plur. 1. Mhealamar, mheallam, mheall sinn, we deceived; 2. mhealabhar, mheall sibh, —; 3. mhealadar, mhealaid, mheall siad.

RELATIVE, mheall.

INTERROGATIVE, ar, nachar, or nar as, ar mheallas.

NEGATIVE, nior, as, nior mhealas.

It is the custom in speech and writing, to place do before the verb in the past tense, as do mhealas, do mhealais, &c.: but it is as correct to omit it, as above.

In ancient MSS. ad, do, ro, dos, ros, and nos, are frequently used as marks of the past tense.

A and ad are sometimes prefixed to the present tense.

Future tense.

Sing. 1. Mealfad, mealfadh me, I will deceive; 2. mealfair, mealfadh tu; 3. mealfaidh, mealfadh se: Plur. 1. Mealfam, mealfamar, mealfamoid, mealfadh sinn; 2. mealfabhar, mealfaidhe, mealfadh sibh; 3. mealfaid, mealfadh siad.

RELATIVE, mhealfadh, that will torment.

INTERROGATIVE, a or an.

NEGATIVE, ni.

CONSUEUDINAL OR HABITUAL MOOD.

Present tense.

Sing. 1. Mealaim, I usually deceive; 2. mealann tu; 3. mealann sé: Plur. 1. mealann sinn; 2. mealann sibh; 3. mealann siad.

Past tense.

Sing. 1. Mhealaim, I used to deceive; 2. mhealtha; 3. mhealadh: Plur. 1. mhealamois; 2. mhealaoidhe; 3. mhealadaois.

RELATIVE, mhealadh, that used to deceive.

In this tense as in the past indicative, do is omitted, although it is commonly written.

POTENTIAL MOOD.

Sing. 1. Mhealfaim, I could or would deceive; 2. mhealfadh; 3. mhealfadh sé: Plur. 1. Mhealfadhmaois, mhealfaidh sinn; 2. mhealfaidhe, mhealfaidh sibh; 3. mhealfaidis, mhealfaidh siad.—Here do is omitted, as in the past tenses of the indicative and consuetudinal.

The various times and persons of this mood may be formed, according to the directions given at the potential of the auxiliary bi; as, is feider liom a mhealadh, I can deceive, &c. still varying the pronoun according to the person.

CONDITIONAL MOOD

This is the same as the potential mood, only placing da, ma, if, &c. before the verb, as, da mhealfainn, if I would deceive, &c.

INFINITIVE MOOD

Do or a mhealadh, to deceive.

PARTICIPLES.

Present, ag mealadh; Past, iar mealadh; Future, air ti mealadh,

E

Interrogative

Interrogative, a or an, as an mealtar me,
Negative, ni, as, ni mealtar me.

In this tense the t that follows the root of the verb is sometimes aspirated, as, mealthar me, I am deceived. In every other respect it is like the Imperative.

Past tense.

Sing. 1. Mealadh me, or do mealadh me, bhí me mealta, I was deceived; 2. do mealadh thu, bhí tu mealta; 3. do mealadh é, bhí se mealta: Plur. 1. do mealadh inn, bhí sinn mealta; 2. mealadh ibh, bhí sibh mealta; 3. mealadh iad, bhí siad mealta.

OF IMPERSONAL VERBS.

All Impersonals are of the neuter gender, and have passive terminations in their various Moods and Tenses.

Luadhatar, it is reported.

IMPERATIVE.—Luadhthar, let it be reported.

INDICATIVE.—Present. Luadhatar, it is reported. Past. Luadhadh, it was reported. Future. Luadhfar, it will be reported.

CONSUEUDINAL.—Lundhthaidh, it is usually, &c.

POTENTIAL.—Luadhfaidhe, it would be reported.

CONDITIONAL.—Da Luadhfaidhe, If it would &c.

OF ADVERBS.

Adverbs are of different kinds and used to denote time, place, manner, quality, &c.

By prefixing ar to Substantives, and go to Adjectives they become Adverbs, or Adverbial expressions; as, ar ccul, back, away, ar thus, at first; go hoid, badly, go bog, softly.

The principal Adverbs and Adverbial expressions are to be found under their proper heads in the Dictionary.

PREPOSITIONS.

The following simple Prepositions never coalesce with any other words in composition:

A, in, out of; Chum, to, unto; Dar, by; Fa, about; Gan, without; Go, that; Go, Gus, to; Iar, after; Mar, like; Os, above, over; Reir, according to; Ria, before; Sa, San, in; Seach, Seacha, in comparison with; Timchioll, about; Trid, through.

The following Prepositions unite with other words in composition, mostly with Pronouns.

Ag, at with; An, Ann, in; Air, Ar, on, upon; As, out of; Chuige, to, towards; De, Di, of; by, off, from; Do, to; Eidir, between; Fa, Faoi, Fu, Fuidh, under; Ion, in; Le, with; O, from; Re, Ris, with; Roimh, before; Seach, by, besides, without, except; Tar, Tairis, over, across; Tre, through; Uadh, from; Uime, Um, about.

The manner in which these Propositions are compounded with other words may be seen at compound pronouns.

The preposition Do, is, by the moderns generally, although improperly, written for De or Di. The learned Doctor Stewart of Dingwall, in his very valuable grammar of the Scottish Gaidhilig, observes, that “De and Do have been long confounded together, both being written Do. It can hardly be supposed that the composite words, dhiom, dhiot, &c. would have been distinguished from dhomh, dhuit, &c. by orthography, pronunciation, and signification, if the Prepositions, as well as the Pronouns, which enter into the composition of these words had been originally the same. In dhiom, &c. the initial consonant is always followed by a small vowel. In dhomh, &c. with one exception, it is followed by a broad vowel. Hence it is presumable, that the Preposition which is the root of dhiom, &c. must have had a small vowel after d; whereas the root of dhomh, &c. has a broad vowel after d.” In the justness of these remarks, Doctor Stewart is borne out by the testimony of our ancient Manuscripts.

CONJUNCTIONS.

Conjunctions are Copulative, Disjunctive. or Conditional.

The Copulatives are, acas, ocas, agus, as, or is; and the Disjunctives are, ach, acht, but; 'na or iona, than; no, or, nor.

The Conditionals are an, ar, whether; Biodh, although; da, if; ge, gidh, though; gur, that; ma, if; o, since, seeing that, because; na, ni, nocha, not; sul, before; nar, nachar, whether or not.

SYNTAX.

ARTICLE.

1. The article agrees with its substantive in gender, number and case. It is always placed before it, and next to it, except when an adjective intervenes: as an crann, the tree; na croinn, the trees; an t'og fhear the young man; an oghbean, the young woman. It adheres to its substantive in all cases except the vocative.

2. When the article comes before nouns beginning with vowels it causes t to be prefixed to the nom. and accus. singular of masculines, and h to the genit. of feminines; as an t'iasg, the fish; na h'oigh, of the virgin.

3. When it precedes substantives beginning with mutable consonants, except d, s and t, it causes aspiration in the nom. and accus. singular of feminines, and in the genitive of masculines; as an bhean, the woman; an fhir, of the man. In the dative singular, whether masculine or feminine, it causes aspiration, or eclipsis.

4. When it precedes nouns beginning with s, followed by a vowel, or by l, n, or r, it requires t prefixed in the nom. dat. and accus. of feminines, and in the gen. and dat. of masculines; as, an t'sigh, the sprite, an t'slat, the rod, fem. an t'suip, of the wisp; an t'sratha, of the stream, masc.

5. In the plural number na causes h to be prefixed to vowels in the nom. and dat. and n in the genitive, as na hogha, the virgins, na n'ogh, of the virgins. When the initial is a mutable consonant, except s, na causes eclipsis in the gen. as na gcrann, of the trees.

6. When the article is preceded by a particle, ending in a vowel it loses the a, and the n is joined to the particle; thus, do, to o, from, fá, under, de, of, followed by an, the, are written and pronounced do'n, to the, o'n from the, fa'n, under the, de'n of the. This last is improperly written do'n by modern Gaelic writers.

7. The article is omitted after a, in; as, a bhfiadhnaise Bhriain, in presence of Brian. It requires s prefixed after ann, in, as, ann san eaglais, in the church. When the noun following the article begins with a vowel, the n is generally separated from the article and joined to the noun, as ann sa n'uair in the hour. When the noun following the article begins with a consonant the n is omitted as ann sa dligh, or sa dligh, in the house.

8 When

8. When two substantives come together, one governing the other in the genitive case, the article is sometimes omitted before both, as Mainistir Chabhain do thionsgnadh, the monastery of the Cavan was begun. When the substantive governed is limited in its signification the article is always written before it; as, cumhachd an Tigh-earna, the power of the Lord. A possessive pronoun joined to the noun governed excludes the article, as, neart ar laimhne, the strength of our hands.

9. There is no indefinite article in Irish. A tree, a fish, a man, &c. is expressed by simply saying, or writing crann, iasg, fear, &c.

SUBSTANTIVE AND ADJECTIVE.

1. When two substantives come together the latter is put in the genitive: as fear tige, the man of the house, fuaime an chlaisirigh, the sound of the harp. The infinitives of transitive verbs, in like manner, govern the genitive of their object; as, ag imirt fithchille, playing chess, iar mealladh a charad, after deceiving his friend. Literally, at the playing of chess; after deceiving of his friend.

2. An adjective generally agrees with its substantive in gender, number, and case; as lamhdhearg, a blood-red hand, na laimhe deirge, of the, &c. do'n lamh, or laimh dhearg, to the, &c. na brait or brata dearga, the red garments; na mbrat ndeirge, of the red garments; do na brataibh dearga, to the red garments. In several MSS. the adjective is made to terminate in the dative, like its substantive; do na brataibh deargaibh. But when the adjective is in predicate of a proposition, and the noun in the subject, the adjective and substantive do not necessarily agree; as bhi Peadar agus Pol LAN de charanthacht; Is firinneach breitheamhnasa an Tighearna, agus ceart go hiomlan. In like manner when the adjective serves to modify the verb, it does not agree with the noun in gender, number, or case, as, rinn me an scian geur, I made the knife sharp, or, I sharpened the knife. Here the adjective does not agree with the noun, because it modifies not the noun, but the verb. But if we say, rinn me ann scian gheur, I made the sharp knife, the adjective agrees with the noun, for it distinguishes that knife from others, and is aspirated in the initial to make it agree with scian, which is of the feminine gender.

3. The adjective is usually placed after its substantive, as, fear laidir, a strong man; bean min, a mild woman; but when they are in different clauses, or when the adjective is asserted of or concerning the noun, it sometimes precedes, as, is laidir an fear sin; as doiligh an lá so, that is a strong man; this is a sorrowful day.

4. Adjectives of one syllable may be prefixed to their substantives, and united to them, forming one compound word, as ógbhean, a young woman, seanrecht the old law.

5. Substantives signifying the same person or thing require the adjective between them, as, an laoch luathmhar lughaidh. In poetry the adjective is sometimes inserted in the middle of its substantive, as,

“Os Dealbhna bheag calma an chlann,

“O Maol-caomh-chalma-callann.”

6. Adjectives signifying profit, proximity, fitness, and their opposites, require a dative case, as, is maith dhuit, it is well for you; is coir dhuit, it is proper for you.

7. Adjectives signifying power, skill, knowledge, dimension, &c. require a dative case governed by the preposition air, as, neartmhar air fhairge, strong on sea; eolach air dhlighe, skilled in law. Some have a dative governed by de, as, lan d'fhuaith is d'sheirg, full of hatred and wrath.

7. Adjectives signifying equality, or similitude, require le, or re, with a dative case, as, coimhionann re Dia, equal with God, comhluath ris na heilitibh, swift as the roes.

8. Numerals whether cardinal or ordinal, so far up as ten, or any multiple of ten are placed before their nouns, as, tri crainn, three trees, an treas crann, the third tree; but any intermediate number between tens has the noun in the plural, between the members of that number, as, tri fir deag, thirteen men, se crainn ar fhichit, twenty six trees.

9. The numerals aon, one; dá, two; cause aspiration, except in nouns beginning with d, or t, following aon; as, aon cheann, one head; dá shúil two eyes; tri, ceathair, cúig sé, all the multiples of tens, and all the ordinals will have the noun in its primary form, as, tri cinn, three heads, ceithre crainn, four trees; cúig fir, five men; fiche colama, twenty doves; coagad baird, fifty poets; cead righthe, a hundred kings; — seacht, seven; ocht, eight; naoi, nine, and deich, ten; cause eclipsis, as, seacht ccosa, seven legs, or feet, ocht gcaoirigh, or ccaoirigh, eight sheep, naoi bhflatha, nine chiefs, deich dteangtha, ten tongues, da, two, and all the multiples of ten prefixed to a noun have the noun in the singular number, as da fear, two men; da fear deag, twelve men; fiche crann, twenty trees; míle marcach, a thousand horsemen. But if an adjective follows the noun the adjective must be in the plural number, as da crann mora, two great trees.

10. The first and most usual form of comparison takes ina, iona na, or no, than; before the following noun; as, is fearr madradh beo iona leomhan mharbh, a living dog is better than a dead lion. The second form of comparison never takes 'na, than, before the noun, thus it is said, ba gilihir sneachta 'naon oidhche ceachtar a di laimh, whiter than the snow of one night was either of her two hands. But it is never said gilithear na, &c.—Superlatives are formed by prefixing as to the positive; as, bean as mine; the mildest woman.

For the initial changes of nouns and adjectives, see pages 4, to 12.

PRONOUNS.

1. There is no variation for the distinction of case, &c. in any of the pronouns, except the personals, and these agree with the nouns to which they refer in gender, number, and case; as, is Dia naomtha e, he is a holy God; is deas an chailín i, she is a pretty girl; Is maith na daoine iad, they are good men.

2. If more than one or two persons or things, be spoken of in a sentence, or if the antecedent be a noun of multitude, the pronoun is the third person plural, as, feartha agus banda do chruthaigh se iad, male and female he created them, drong do bhíodh re foghla ar muir iad, they were a people that were robbers on sea.

3. The possessive pronouns always precede their nouns, as, mo lamh, my hand. When they are joined to the noun governed, the article is omitted, as, neart bhuir lamh, the strength of your hands.

4. The possessive pronouns, mo, my; do, thy; a, his; cause aspiration in the initials of their substantives; as, mo dhorn, my fist; do mheur, thy finger; a chos, his foot.

Mo

Mo before a substantive beginning with a vowel or f, loses o, and unites with the substantive, as m'anam, my soul, m'fheoil, my flesh; Do, in like manner loses o, and the d is changed into t or h before vowels; as t'ainm, or hainm, thy name; t'fhearg, thy anger. Some writers do not commute the d for t before f, but write or say d'fhearg, &c.

5. A, her; before nouns beginning with vowels, causes h prefixed, as, a headain, her face; before consonants the noun must be in its primary form; as, a cos her foot.

6. The plural possessive pronouns ar, our; bhur, your; and a, their; cause eclipsis on the following consonants, except s, and require n prefixed to nouns beginning with vowels; as, ar ngort, our garden; bhur ndia, your God; a gcosa, or a ccosa their feet; ar n'athair, our father; bhur n'arán, your bread; a n'ead their jealousy.—The compound possessive pronouns have the same influence as their primitives, upon the initials of nouns following them.

7. Relative pronouns, whether expressed or understood, always precede the verb; as, an fear a chongnaim is é mheallas me, the man that I support is he who deceives me.

8. DEMONSTRATIVE pronouns immediately follow the nouns or adjectives with which they are connected, except when the substantive verb is understood; as an fear so, this man; an bhean sin, that woman; na daoine úd, those people; but when the substantive verb is understood, the demonstrative precedes its substantive; as, so an fear, here is the man.

9. The Demonstrative pronoun so, is often written sa, when joined to a noun whose last vowel is broad; as an crannsa, this tree; when following a noun whose vowel is slender, it is sometimes written se, and si; as an teinse, this fire; an mhirsi, this portion.

10. INTERROGATIVE pronouns, when a question is asked, generally vary not in form, whether their objects or respondents be masculine or feminine; as, ca duine? what man? ca bean? what woman? cia thusa a mhic? who art thou my son? cia thusa a inghean? who art thou my daughter? but when a question is particular, the personal pronoun, following the interrogative, distinguishes the gender and number of the object; as, cia he, or ce, an fear sin? who is that man? cia hi, or ci an bhean sin? who is that woman? cia hiad, or cid na dream úd? who are those people?

11. Interrogatives always precede the object to which they refer, or the verb by which they are governed.

12. An interrogative combined with a personal pronoun asks a question, without the aid of the substantive verb; as, an é an fear? is he the man?

VERBS.

1. A verb agrees with its nominative in number and person; as, do bhuaill sé, he struck; do bhualadar, or do bhuaill siad, they struck.

2. Verbs active govern the accusative case; as, buaílim thu, I beat you; do bhuaill tu an fear, you beat the man.

3. The nominative generally follows the verb; as, Ar ttus do chruthaidh Dia neamh agus talamh, In the beginning God created heaven and earth. But in poetry and in old MSS. particularly the Annals, the nominative frequently precedes the verb; as, Domhnall mac Giolla Josa ruaidh ui Raghallaigh do ég, Donald, Son of red Giolla-Josa, (the servant of Jesus,) O'Reilly died. O'Neill da thabhairt tuarastail do Thighearna Tuadmhumhan i. e. do Thaidheac mac Thoirdealbhaigh ui Bhriain O'Neill gave hire, or wages, to the Lord of Thomond, (North Munster,) i. e. to Teig, son of Torlogh O'Brian. 4 Mast. 1463.

4. When two or more nouns are joined together in a sentence, if the first noun be of the singular number, the verb must be singular also, whether the following nouns be singular or plural; as, do ghabh iarsin tuirse agus fearg mór fir Eireand, after that great grief and anger seized the men of Ireland; na dhiaigh sin do chuaidh sé síos go Capernaum, é féin agus a mhathair, agus a dhearbhrathreacha agus a dheisciobail, after that he went down to Capernaum, himself, and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples; do iondsaigh Murcha, agus Dalgais, agus na Lochlannaigh a cheile, Morogh, and the Dalcassians, and the Danes met together.

5. In the past tense the particle do may be omitted, except the verb begins with f, or a vowel; thus shiubhlas, I walked, is as correct as do shiubhlas: but if f or a vowel be the initial of the verb, do can never be omitted; as, do freagair duine d'a mhuinntir é, one of his people answered him; do admhadar, they confessed.

6. The pronoun is omitted when the personal termination of the verb is used; as, siubhlair, you walk; do shiubhlas, I walked. These personal terminations are constantly used in all the old MSS. and in most of the printed books; and even in the oral language of the present day, they are frequently used by the common people, except in parts of the province of Ulster, where the pronoun is generally used with the verb; as, siubhlann tu, or siubladh tu, thou walkest; do shiubhal me I walked. In late books of the Scottish Gaelic, the personal termination of the verb is seldom or never used.

7. The infinitive mood and participles govern a genitive case; as chuaidh sé a gearradh chrainn, he went to cut a tree; do bhi Solamh ag deanamh a thighe féin tri bliadhna deug, Solomon was building his own house thirteen years; bhi siad ag arguin na tíre fa gach leith, they were plundering the country on all sides; iar mbriseadh an chonnartha, after breaking the covenant; ar ti dul a cheannach arbhair, about to buy corn.—Active participles cause aspiration in the mutable initials of nouns of the masculine gender.

8. The infinitive has its object before it in the accusative; as, an fear do chur a gcarcair, to put the man into prison.

9. Passive verbs or participles never govern any case. They never vary from the first person in any tense, and are always followed by personal pronouns.

10. Interrogatives prefixed to verbs, in the active voice, present and future tenses, require the initial of the verb to be eclipsed, if it be of the class subject to eclipses; and if the verb begins with a vowel, n must be prefixed. In the past tense, the initial must be aspirated, if it be a mutable consonant.

11. Negatives cause aspiration in the initials of all the tenses, in both active and passive voices.

12. Interrogatives prefixed to verbs in the passive voice, have the same influence in the present and future tenses, tenses, as in the active voice. In the past tense they cause no change in the initial of the verb.

AUXILIARY VERBS.

1. The auxiliary verbs with the aid of a noun, and of the prepositions, ag, ar, do, le, uadh, united with personal pronouns, supply the place of verbs denoting possession, want, power, necessity, or any affection of the body or mind.

As or is, and bi take do, or le, combined with a pronoun, after the noun; and ta, bi, fuil, and raibh, take ag, ar, and uadh; as, is féidir liom a dheanamh, I may do; ba chóir dhamh a dheanamh, I should do; is éigean dhamh, I must; tá airgid agam, I have money; ní bhfuil or agad, you have no gold; tá an t'airgid agus an t'or uainn, we want the silver and the gold; tá fhios agam, I know; tá gradh agam, I love; tá fuacht orm, I am cold; budh ocras orra, they were hungry.

2. When as or is, follows a word ending with a vowel, or ba or budh precedes a word beginning with a vowel, the verb drops its vowel and unites with the word before or after it; as, ma's (ma is) fíor sin, if that be true; b'éigean damh, I was obliged, it was compulsion to me; b'fhéidir leat, you might; you had the power or ability. Ba or budh causes aspiration on mutable initials of adjectives of the masculine gender following them, except d or t as ba chumachtach an fear é, he was a powerful man: but it has no influence on adjectives of the feminine gender, as, budh mín an bhean í, she was a mild woman.

ADVERB.

1. The intensitive particles an, gle, ro, sar, cause aspiration in the initials of words following them, except words beginning with d, s, or t. An and ro, are prefixed to substantives as well as to adjectives; as anghlaodh, a great shout; rofhlaithe, a great prince; anmhór very great; róimhílis, very sweet.

2. Do and ro, are often prefixed to Verbs active, as marks of the past tense, but they are not the cause of aspiration; active verbs in the past tense, must be aspirated whether those particles are expressed or not. When do, is used before a vowel or fh, it loses the o in the active voice, and the d, unites with the verb, as d'aithin, he knew; d'fhásadar, they grew. Passive verbs suffer no change in their initials from these particles.

PREPOSITIONS.

1. The Prepositions a, ag, ann, as, de, do, fa, fo, faoi, fuidh, go, gus, gan, i, is, iar, idir, le, leis, mar, o, os, re, ria, ris, roimh, seach, tar, tre, tres, are always prefixed to the object they govern, and require a dative case.

2. A, ann, i, in; air, on; go, that, until; iar, after; ria, before, cause eclipsis; as, a ccath, or d gcath, in battle; a tTeamhair, or dTeamhair, in Tarah; air ttuis or dtuis, at first; air mbeith, on being; do chualabhar go ndubhradh ris na seinnsearaibh, ye have heard that it was said by the elders; ag liag atá i n'Uisneach, go ttainig Tuathal Teachtmhar, at a stone in Uisneach, until the coming of Tuathal, &c. iar mbuaileadh, after beating; ria ndibirt, before exile. A, in, prefixes n to vowels, as a n'uamhann, in dread; Ann, in, requires sa subjoined before consonants, as annsa tír, in the country. Air, on, is sometimes used without causing any variation in the initial of the following noun, and sometimes it causes aspiration. Go, that, prefixes n to vowels.

3. A, out of; de, of; do, to; fa, faoi, fuidh, about, over, under; idir, between; mar, as; o, from; roimh, before; tar, beyond; and tre, through, cause aspiration. A, out of, and o, from, prefixes h to vowels, as a h'Eirinn, out of Ireland.

4. Ag, at; chum, to, for with; go, to; le, re, by with; os, over about; require the noun in the primary form. Go, to; le and re, with; and tre, through, require h prefixed to nouns beginning with vowels; as, o háit, go háit, from place to place; le hanfadh gaoithe, by a storm of wind; re hár mor, with great slaughter; but before the personal pronoun a, his, &c. require n, prefixed, as le n'a, &c.

5. When the article comes between a noun or adjective, in the singular number, and a preposition, the noun or adjective suffers eclipsis; as, as an dtír, out of the country, &c. De and do, are exceptions; these require aspiration in mutable initials, except those beginning with s, which must be eclipsed, de'n tsron, of the nose; do'n tsuil, to the eye.

6. As, gus, is, leis, ris, tres, are used before the article instead of a, i, go, le, re, and tre.

7. De, of; do, to; fa, fo, upon, under, about; preceding the article an, cause the omission of a, and unite with the n; as, de'n, of the; do'n, to the, &c.

8. The measure or extent of a thing, requires air, prefixed to the term expressive of height, depth, length, breadth, &c. as, da troigh air airde, two feet high; ceithre troighthe air dhoimhneacht, four feet deep; se troighthe air leithead, six feet broad; ocht dtroighthe air fad, eight feet long.

9. Prepositions ending in vowels require n prefixed to the personal pronoun a: as, le n'a chos, with his foot; tre n'a coir, through her fault; ó n'a cceart or goeart, from their justice.

INTERJECTIONS.

1. The interjection a is always prefixed to the vocative and causes aspiration in mutable consonants; as, a dhuine! Oh man!

2. Mairg, wo, requires a dative case; as mairg dhamhsa, wo to me!

None of the other interjections govern a case.

CONJUNCTIONS.

1. The Conjunctions agus, as, or is, and no, couple the same cases of nouns; as fear no bean, man or woman; feardha agus banda, male and female.

2. The conjunctions a, an, nach, whether; da, if; cause eclipsis in the initials of active verbs, but have no influence on the passive voice.

3. Ar, nach, nar, nachar, whether; gur, that; ma, if; mar, as; ní, ná, not; muna, if not; na, iona, than; o, since seeing that; cause aspiration.—Nocha, not, prefixes n to vowels and to f, when followed by a vowel, as nocha n'fhuil, there is not.

4. Ma, if; o, since, seeing that; cause aspiration in mutable initials of verbs, except tá, is, it is; thus, ma mhealaim, if I deceive; ma tá, if he is.

5. As and is, are only contractions of agus, and. When the conjunction as or is, precedes the auxiliary verb as, or is, it is; the conjunction loses its vowel and unites with the verb; as, 'sas mor an obair, and great is the work; in like manner when it is followed by a vocative case, it drops its vowel and joins with the sign a; as, 'sa Dhia, and Oh God.

OF CONTRACTIONS.

The Irish MSS. particularly those of modern date, abound with contractions, nor are our printed books totally free from them. The books printed and published by the Franciscan Friars at Louvain, in the early part of the seventeenth century, very frequently have an n, or vowels placed over the consonants thus $\overset{n}{r}, \overset{a}{r}, \overset{e}{r}$ &c. When n is placed over a consonant it has the sound or power of ra, or radh, as $\overset{n}{g}$ gradh, love; when a vowel is written over a consonant it has the sound of r united with it before or after; thus $\overset{a}{r}, \overset{e}{r}$ &c. represent the sounds of tar or tra; ter or tre. When s is placed over a consonant, it represents the sound of ear, and ss, stands for earr, thus $\overset{s}{f}, \overset{ss}{f}$, represent fear a man, and fearr, better.

A knowledge of the various contractions used in our ancient MSS. is absolutely necessary to every person who may wish to consult those venerable remains of our country's literature. A copious table of them, containing near four hundred examples, and an account of the Ogham, or secret manner of writing used by the old Irish, is to be found in the Grammar of my esteemed friend, the Rev. Paul O'Brien, Professor of the Irish Language at the College of Maynooth.

The younger Teig was a school-master in Dublin. There is in the library of Trinity College a large English-Irish Dictionary compiled by him, with an intent to publish it. It appears by a memorandum at the end of the work, that he spent six years at it, and finished it in the year 1739. Through the indulgence of the Provost and Fellows of the College, I had access to this book, by which I have been enabled to add a great number of words to my collection. In the year 1741, the younger Teig made a collation of the Punic speech in Plautus, with the Irish. The original is in my possession, and General Vallancey had the use of it long before he published his collation of that speech, which first obtained for him the reputation of an Irish scholar. The General made no acknowledgement of his obligations to O'Neachtain.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER A.

(From the Irish-English Dictionary, published in Paris, 1768, by the Right Rev. Doctor O'BRIEN, R. C. Bishop of Cloyne.)

THE letter A, is the first in the alphabets of almost all languages, though ancient historians inform us, as O'Flaherty, upon the authority of the book of Lecan, observes, that the old Irish, like the Æthiopians or Abyssines, began their alphabet with the letter B, and therefore the Irish called it Beith-luis-nion, from its three first letters, B. L. N. However, in imitation of other learned languages, and particularly the Latin, whose alphabet was first introduced into Ireland by the first Missionaries of the Christian Religion, the modern Irish thought proper to begin their alphabet with A. This letter is one of the five vowels (called cuig guthaidhe in Irish,) and is pronounced broad like aw in English. It is distinguished by the appellative of Ailm, which seems to signify strictly and properly, the palm-tree, called palma nobilis, and therefore deserves precedence; although Mr. O'Flaherty, notwithstanding the affinity of the words Ailm and Palma, interprets it the fir-tree, lat. abies. It is not unlike the Hebrew Aleph, and the Chaldaean and Greek Alpha. By our grammarians it is ranked among the leathan-guthaidhe, or broad vowels; and in our old MSS. we find a, o, and u, written indifferently one for the other, as in agas, ocas, agus. And, as also in dear, deor, deur, a tear, &c. Thus among the Æolians we find O written for A, as strotos for stratos an army, ono for ano, meaning, over or above, and the Latins have imitated them, saying domo, from the Greek damo, to tame, or subdue; as also Fovius for Fabius, according to Festus, and forreus for farreus.

A was sometimes written for the ea of the moderns, as dagh for deagh, good, &c. It begins all those diphthongs, which in Irish are called na ceithre hamharchoill, or the four apthongs, viz. ao, aoi, ai, ae. Note that ao (which is a modern apthong, as is the modern triphthong aoi, and is substituted instead of ae, and oe, used by our old writers,) is pronounced broad like é long, or the Latin æ, in the words saoghal, an age, lat. sæculum, and aos, age, lat. ætas. The triphthong aoi, is pronounced like ee in the English words been, keen, &c. but more nearly like ui in the Irish for which it has been substituted by the moderns. It is an inflection of ao, and formed directly from it, as from maol bald, comes maoil, and maoile, bald and baldness; saor, daor, produce also saoir, daoir, &c. so that the Irish triphthong in general, is formed by adding an i to the diphthong, and thus serves to express the genitive case and other inflections of the same word, as aoi from ao; coi from eo; iai from ia; iu from iu; and uai from ua. Analogous to the genius of the Irish language in this manner of inflecting the diphthongs into triphthongs, it is observable in the Ionic inflections of nouns, that they frequently use oio for ou in the genitive case; and nothing more common in the Greek language than a vowel extraordinary, and sometimes two, added in the beginning, middle or end of words, that they may sound the sweeter, or that the verse may flow the more pompous and musical. Thus for one example amongst many, the Phœnician tribe who are called Gephyraei in the Latin edition of Herodotus are written Gephyraioi in his Greek original, l. 5. c. 57, 58. So that if we would compare both languages together, we should find a much greater number of such inflections and variations in the Greek than in the Irish. And they are the less puzzling in the latter, as the three vowels are all pronounced with one breath and in one syllable, and as no vowel but the i is added to the diphthong to form the triphthong.

But this singularity seems peculiar to the Irish language, that no two or three vowels joined to each other in the same word, can form two different syllables. For which reason our bards or versificators who frequently wanted to stretch out words by multiplying their syllables according to the exigency of their rhymes, devised the method of throwing in between the two vowels an adventitious consonant (generally a d or g, aspirated by h), in order to stretch and divide the two vowels into two different syllables. And as this consonant was quite foreign to the natural frame of the word, so it entirely corrupted and disguised its radical formation and structure. It must be confessed this method has the sanction of a respectable antiquity, and is countenanced by examples, if not precedents, not only in the Welsh or old British language, but even in the Greek, wherein the Æolick digamma, (which is the V consonant and was pronounced by the Æolics, as it is still by the Germans like F), was inserted when two vowels met together. For example, the Jaones was pronounced Javones, or rather Jafones, and Jaon changed it into Javon, &c. vid. Stillingfleet origin. p. 560. Thus also an adventitious d is inserted between two vowels in many Latin words, both to distinguish the syllables and prevent a hiatus, particularly in compounds whose first part consists of the iterative particle re, while the following part begins with a vowel, as in the words redarguo, redeo, redigo, redimo, redintegratio, &c. But certain it is notwithstanding these examples or precedents, that this rule together with another devised in like manner by our bards or rhymers, I mean that which is called caol le caol, agus leathan le leathan, have been woefully destructive to the original and radical purity of the Irish language. This latter rule (much of a more modern invention than the former, for our old MSS. shew no regard to it,) imports and prescribes that the two vowels thus forming, or contributing to form, two different syllables by the interposition of a consonant, whether such a consonant be adventitious to, or originally inseparable from the radical formation of the word, should both be of the same denomination or class of either broad or small vowels; and this without any regard to the primitive elementary structure of the word. So that if the vowel preceding the consonant should originally happen to be of the class of broad vowels a, o, u, while the vowel following the same consonant should be of the class of small vowels e, i, or vice versa; in that case the vowel preceding the consonant being of a different class from that which follows it, must either be struck out entirely to make room for a vowel of the same class with the following (for it is the vowel following the consonant that commands the change in the preceding, without being subjected to any in itself) or else another adventitious vowel must be placed after it of the same class with the subsequent.

I shall instance only in two words amongst many others, both to illustrate those two rules by way of exemplification, and to shew how prejudicial they naturally must have been to the primitive purity of the Irish language, by changing, corrupting and metamorphosing a great number of its words from their original and radical structure. I shall first exemplify in the Irish word Gall a Gaul, plural Gaill Gauls; which are the Celtic words upon which the Latin words Gallus Galli, have been formed. Nothing more evident from the most ancient monuments of the Irish nation, than that the national name of the first Celts who came to Ireland, (whether they arrived there immediately from Gaul, or rather after remaining for some tract of time in the greater British Isle, as Mr. Lhuyd gives good grounds to think) was Gall in the singular and Gaill in the plural; and that their language was called Galic, or Gailic, though it is equally certain this same national name of Gall, and Gaill, in the plural, was afterwards applied by the old natives to other colonies that followed these primitive Celts into that Island from different parts of the Continent, and even to the English adventurers whom they called Clanna Gall, as well as Sagsanaic; which must have proceeded both from their having forgot their own origin on account of the change in their national name from Gaill into Gaidhil, &c. and also from the knowledge they traditionally preserved of the Gaulish nation, of its great extent, as well as of its vicinity with the British Isles; all which circumstances occasioned that the generality of the old Irish Celts and Celtiberians, who probably were the first planters of Ireland, imagined that the strangers who came amongst them from time to time, whether immediately from Britain or otherwise, must have originally proceeded from Gaul. Now the Irish bards or rhymers wanting to stretch out this monosyllable Gaill into two syllables to serve the exigency of their verses and rhythmical measures, have first formed it into Gaidhill agreeably to the former of the two rules now mentioned, and when the second rule caol le caol, &c. took place, it required that an I or an E should be thrown in before the consonant D, by which means it turned out Gaidhill or Gaedhil instead of its original simple formation Gaill. So likewise the word Galic or Gailic meaning the Celtiberian language was changed into Gaidhilic or Gaedhilic, genit. Gaedhilice or Gaedhilge, from which last spelling it has been changed by our modern grammarians into Gaodhailic, genit. Gaodhailge, by the unnatural substitution of ao, instead of a, or e, of the antients, absolutely ordering that we should pronounce their ao just as we do oe in the Latin word Calum.

Guidhil, another writing of the same word, meaning the Irish people, and Guidhilic their language, are found in some Irish manuscripts of good antiquity, from which the moderns, by abusively substituting aoi, instead of ui, though carrying another sound, have turned their words into Gaoidhil and Gaoidhilic genit. Gaoidhilge, which is the gothic and uncouth shape, in which, to conform with the modern orthography, I must let it stand in the frontispiece of my Dictionary. I have just hinted that Guidhil and Guidhilic is not to be counted a modern manner of writing these words; which truth is confirmed by Welsh manuscripts of respectable antiquity, wherein the Irish are called Guydhil and sometimes Guydhilod, and their language Guidhilec. Apropos to this writing of the Welsh, I cannot but observe by the bye, that it hence appears this old nation must have always judged the primitive Irish and the Gauls to be originally one and the same people, inasmuch as we find in Mr. Lhuyd's Archæologia (comparat. Etymol. pag. 23. col. 3.) that the Welsh or old Britons interpreted in their language the Latin word Gallus or Gallicus by Guydhileg, a word which is plainly and literally of the same formation of those whereby they distinguish the Irish people and their language. Before I have done with the words Gaill and Galic, Gailic, or Gaelic, I think it pertinent to remark that notwithstanding the complex and inform shape of the words Gaidhil, Gaedhil, Gaoidhil, and Gaidhilic, Gaedhilic, and Gaoidhilic, into which they have been changed, yet the originals from which they were derived are still preserved in their primitive simplicity by the very formation of these latter words, which is very nearly the same as that of the former, inasmuch as the adventitious letters dh are not pronounced, and serve only to distinguish the syllables: which shews that this was the only purpose they were first thrown in for. We should not in the mean time forget that it is to this change made in the words Gaill and Galic, doubtless by our heathenish bards, who inserted the letter d, that we owe the important discovery necessarily reserved to their successors who embraced christianity, of those illustrious personages Gadel and Gadelus; the former an usher under that royal School-master, Pheniusa Farsa, King of Scythia, in his famous school on the plain of Sennaar, where this Gadel invented the Irish alphabet, and the Gadelian language, so called, as it is pretended from his name; and the latter a grandson of that king by his son Niull, married to Scota, daughter to Pharaoh Cingris, as our bards call him, instead of Cinchres, king of Egypt, under whose reign they tell us Moses and our Gadelus were cotemporaries and great friends, and from this Gadelus our learned bards gravely assure us that the Irish derive their name of Gadelians, who, they tell us were also called Scots from his wife the Egyptian princess Scota. This discovery I have said was necessarily reserved to our christian bards, as their heathenish predecessors most certainly could have no notion of the plain of Sennaar, of Pharaoh, or of Moses; objects not to be known but from the holy Scriptures, or some writings derived from them, such as those of Josephus, Philo, &c. never known to the Irish bards before christianity. I have remarked in another work, not as yet published, that our christian bards did not lose much time in availing themselves of the sacred history to frame this story, inasmuch as we find it word for word in the scholiast on the life of St. Patrick by Fiach, bishop of Sleipte, one of that Saint's earliest disciples; which scholiast the learned and judicious Colgan places towards the end of the sixth century. This date is much earlier than that of the manuscript called Leabhar Gabhala, or the book of conquests, wherein our story now mentioned is embellished with further circumstances.

The other word I mean to produce as a remarkable example and proof of the alteration of the primitive and radical frame of many words of the Irish language, caused by the above described rules and other innovations of our modern copists and rhymers, as well as by the corruption proceeding from vulgar pronunciation, to which indeed all languages have been subject (even the Latin, witness the words nudiustertius, pridie, postridie, &c.) the word I say I mean to exemplify in, is Bliadhain or Bliaghain, a year, lat. annus. The original formation or construction of this word was, Bel-ain, or Béal-ain, i e, the circle of Belus or of the Sun. Ain or ainn in Irish, signifies a great circle, as its diminutive ainne, vulgarly fainne, means a small circle or a ring, vid. ain, ainne, ainne, infra; and Bel or Beal was the Assyrian, Chaldean or Phœnician name of the true God, while the patriarchal religion was generally observed; and very properly, as it signifies Dominus or Dominator in Latin. This name was afterwards attributed to the Sun, when those oriental nations generally forgot, or willingly swerved from the worship of the true God, and adored that planet as their chief deity. See Gutlerus origines mundi, lib. 1. cap. 9. Schedius de Diis Germ. cap. 7. Tirinus in cap. 2. Osee V. 16. It is very certain that the primitive Irish observed this idolatrous worship of the Sun under the name of Bél or Béal, whatever part of the world they derived it from, as appears very manifestly by those religious fires they lighted with great solemnity on May-day; a fact which is evidently proved by the very name whereby they distinguished that day, which is still called and known by no other name than that of Lá Béal tinne, i e, the day of the fire of Bel or Belus. This solemnity they celebrated in honor of the Sun, under the name of Beal, on this first day of their summer, when the benign influence of that planet begins to restore new life to both the animal and vegetable world in most parts of our hemisphere.

Now this word Bel-ain being changed by the vulgar pronunciation into Ble-ain and Bli-ain, in which position it required the insertion of an aspirated d or g, consequently turned out Bliadhain or Bliaghain, according to the former of the two rules above explained, and then the latter rule of Leathan le leathan to vindicate its right, to share in the new creation of this word, threw in the vowel a before the adventitious consonant to agree with the subsequent a, so that the original word having thus received two adventitious letters besides the aspirate h, is thereby metamorphosed from its original form Bel-ain to Bliadhain or Bliaghain, for it admits of both these writings. I shall finish these remarks with observing that the word Ain or Ainn (which is the latter part of the compound word Bel-ain, signifying the great circle of Belus, i e, the solar circle or annual course of the Sun) is the Celtic original upon which the Latin word Anus was formed, it was afterwards written Annus, for Quintilian informs us that the ancients did not double their consonants. Varro assures us that the proper and original signification of this word Anus or Annus is a circ or great circle, whose diminutive Anulus or Annulus signifies a small circle or ring. His words are nam ut parvi circuli annuli, sic magni dicebantur anni. But the word annus is now exalted to mean solely and properly the solar circle or annual course of the Sun, whilst Anus, its more ancient writing, is degraded to signify no more than the circular form of the podex. Vid. Littleton ad voces Anus, Annus, Annulus. Other examples, to observe it by the bye, of words of an honorable meaning at first, being afterwards degraded to a dishonorable signification and vice versa, will be found in the following Dictionary at the word Cniocht.

Life of St. Patrick by Patrick, Bishop of Down, and of the Irish, written in Latin, and translated into English by Thomas Moore, Esq. of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. In two volumes. London, 1726.

The first volume contains the life of St. Patrick, and the second the life of St. Columba. The life of St. Patrick is written in a very plain and simple manner, and is full of interesting particulars. The life of St. Columba is written in a more elegant and polished style, and is also full of interesting particulars. The translation is very good, and the whole is a very valuable work.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER B.

B is the second Letter of the Irish Alphabet, as well as of most other Alphabets; it is the first consonant, and is called a labial letter, because the lips are mostly used in the formation of it. In Irish Manuscripts of late ages it is written for P, both b and p being made commutable one with the other, as in the words dubh black, doibh to them, bá, it was, they write duph pa, &c. which is also the case with the Greeks and Latins, for the former write bikros for pikros, amarus; and the Latins wrote poplicola and publicola indifferently, and populus and publicus; also scriptum, and not scribunt from scribo. By putting a tittle or point over this letter in Irish, (which is a late invention, being not to be found in any old parchments,) it sounds like the Latin v consonant, as we have no such letter in our alphabet, which is the case of the Greeks, though their B or beta is often rendered in Latin by v, as Greek Barrhon, Latin Varro, Greek Birgilios, Latin Virgilius, Greek biote, Latin vita; Irish Beatha, and when tittled, it sounds veatha, vita. The name of this consonant in Irish approaches much closer in sound and letters to the Hebrew name of the said letter, than either the Chaldean Betha, or the Greek Beta, it being in Irish Beith, and in Hebrew Beth. Beth signifies a house in Hebrew, and Both in Irish is a very common name for an open house or tent. It is to be observed, that the Irish consonants, b, c, d, g, p, t, by a full-point or tittle set over any of them, do thereby lose their simple strong sound, and pronounce after the manner of the Hebrew bh, ch, dh, gh, ph, th, which are simply and genuinely aspirated; on the other hand, it is to be particularly noticed, that the now mentioned Hebrew consonants, by them called Begad-Kephat, memoria causa, by fixing a Dagesch or full-point in the middle of any of them, do thereby also lose their simple aspirate sound, and pronounce strong like the Irish b, c, d, g, p, t, so that the addition of a full-point to any of those Irish consonants, change it immediately into its corresponding letter of the Hebrew; and again, the addition of a full-point to the above mentioned Hebrew consonants, changes them into their corresponding letters of the Irish. By this kind of reciprocation between the Irish and Hebrew languages, the antiquity of the Irish, or Celtic, seems to be sufficiently demonstrated: although it must be confessed, that the using a full-point in either of the two languages is of a late invention, these consonants being naturally wrote down, and the strong or aspirate pronunciation of them being left to the judgment of the skilful readers, who, doubtless, wanted no such points to direct them; thus the modern Spaniards, who use the b and the v, indifferently for each other, pronounce the word biber to drink, as if it were written biver, &c. as did also the ancient Romans, ex. Hic se Bivo omnibus suis benefecit. And bidit for vidit, bixit for vixit, beto for veto, bolucrit for voluerit, Bendere for vendere, &c. Vide Lhuyd. compar. Etymol. pag. 22.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER C.

This letter obtains the third place in the modern Irish Alphabet; as it does in the Latin, and other European Alphabets. Our Grammarians distinguish it by the name of Coll, which is the hazel-tree in Irish, Lat. Corylus, and so every other letter of the Irish Alphabet is called by the name of some particular tree of the natural growth of the country: for which reason the old Irish called their letters and writings Feadha, i. e. woods; and so did the old Romans call their literary compositions by the name of Sylvæ, when they wrote on leaves of trees, and tables of wood * The Danes also called their Runics by the name of Bogstave, for the same reason and in the same sense. Vid. Olaus Wormius de liter. Run. page 67. The Irish C or Coll, is ranked by our Grammarians among those consonants they call bog-chonsoineadha, soft consonants: though it is to be noted that this letter invariably preserves a strong sound, wherever it stands in its simple and unaspirated state, whether in the beginning, middle, or end of a word: so that of its own nature, it always carries the force of the Greek Kappa, or the English K, but when it is aspirated by an h, subjoined to it, or a full point set over it, instead of the h, it then carries the soft, guttural or whistling sound of the Greek Chi, or the Spanish X.

Our Irish copyists have frequently substituted the letter G in the place of C; which substitution is indeed the more natural, as they both may be regarded as letters of the same organ; and yet this exchange was not always free from abuse as it sometimes carried away the Irish words from their affinity with other languages, especially the Latin. Thus, for Cabhar, Lat. Capra, a goat, they wrote Gabhar; for Camul, Lat. Camelus, a Camel, and metaphorically, a simpleton, they wrote Gamul; for Deie, or Déac, Lat. Decem, they wrote Déag; for con or co, Lat. cum or co, they write gon, or go; for con a mbráithribh, Lat. cumfratribus, they write gon a mbráithribh; for co ngallaibh, i. e. con gallaibh, Lat. cum Gallis, they write gon'gallaibh, &c. And, vice versa, our Grammarians have as frequently substituted C in the place of G, esteeming these two letters naturally commutable with each other, like D and T, as indeed they always were in most of the ancient languages. But it is particularly to be observed, that although the letters C and G usurp each other's places; yet in the Irish language they never exchange sound or power, each invariably preserving its own natural power and pronunciation wherever it appears. For C is always a Kappa or K; and G is as constantly a strong unguttural Gamma, excepting the case of their being aspirated by the immediate subjoining of an h. This property seems peculiar to the Irish or Celtic amongst the old languages, since we see in the oldest draughts of the Hebrew and Greek letters, that the Gimel of the former and the Gamma of the latter are marked down, as having the force and pronunciation of either G or C indifferently; which is likewise the case in the Armenian, Æthiopian, and Coptic alphabets, as appears by the tables of Doctors Bernard and Morton. Thus likewise do all the other letters of the Irish alphabet constantly preserve their respective force and power, without usurping one another's pronunciation or function, as it happens in other languages; in which C often usurps that of S, as in the Latin word Cicero, as does likewise T when immediately followed by the vowel i, and then by another vowel, as in the words Titius, Mauritius, usurpatio, &c. So that if Lucian had to deal only with the Irish alphabet, he would have had no room for the humorous quarrell and lawsuit he raised between the consonants of his alphabet, for encroaching on one another, as those of most other alphabets frequently do, by usurping one another's function of sound and pronunciation. And this circumstance regarding the Irish alphabet is the more remarkable, as its whole and primitive stock of letters, is but sixteen in number, the same as that of the first Roman, or Latin alphabet, brought by Evander the Arcadian, which was the original Cadmean or Phenician set of letters communicated to the Greeks. And yet our sixteen letters of the primitive Irish alphabet were sufficient for all the essential purposes of language, every one preserving its own sound or power, without usurping that of any other letter. As to the h, it is only an aspirate in the Irish language, and never entered as a natural element into the frame of any word; though, indeed, of late ages, it seems to have put on the appearance and function of a letter, when used as a prefix to a word, that begins with a vowel, which happens only in words referred to females or the feminine gender; for in Irish we say; a aidhe, his face; but as to the face of a woman, we must say; a haidhe; in which the h is a strong aspirate and carries such a force as it does in the Latin, heri, hodie; the Greek, hagios, Heracleos, the French, hero, the English, host, &c. And as to the P, we shall in our remarks on that letter, alledge some reasons which may seem to evince, that it did not originally belong to the Irish alphabet.

One remark more remains to be made on the letter C, which relates to the aspirate or guttural sound, (the same as in the Greek chi) it is susceptible of at the beginning of a word; a remark, which is equally applicable to the letter B, and partly to other consonants of the Irish alphabet. In all the nominal words or nouns substantive of whatever gender beginning with C, and bearing a possessive reference to persons, or things of the masculine gender, the letter C, is aspirated; but not so when they are referred to the feminine. Ex. a cheann (masc.) his head; a chos, his foot; a ceann (fem.) her head, a cos, her foot. So likewise in B, a bhuachail (masc.) his servant man; a bhean-sclábha, (fem.) his servant maid, a Búachail, her man servant, a bean sclábha her woman servant. But when those words, or any other nominals, are taken absolutely, without reference to any thing, those of the feminine gender alone, are aspirated in their initial letter, whether C or B. Ex. an chos, the foot; an bhean-sclábha, the woman servant, an Buachail, the man servant. So that this prefixing of the particle an before nouns substantive, is one method of discovering their gender. But it does not hold good with regard to nouns beginning with D or T.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER D.

The letter D or Duir, which is so called from duir, the oak tree, is now the fourth letter of the Irish Alphabet, and is ranked by our Grammarians, among the cruadh-consoine, or hard consonants; but by adding an h, or fixing a full point above it, it falls under the denomination of light consonants, called in Irish consoine ead-troma. In our old Manuscripts D and T, are written indifferently; as, carad or carat, a friend; iad or iat, them, &c. And this indifference is common also to the Greeks and Latins; as, Gr. oude and oute, neque, &c.; and Lat. haud and haut, reliquit and reliquid, quodannis and quotannis, &c. In the Greek language, the third rank of the mute consonants is T, D, and Th, the middle consonant D, respectively corresponding to T and Th. Now it is to be observed, that in the Irish language, any word beginning with T, will, in its variations, admit both D and Th; as, Tiarna, a lord, Lat. Tyrannus, and Gr. Tyrannos; a d'tiarna, their lord; mo thiarna, my lord, and so on with every word, whose initial letter is T. The Irish D corresponds with the Gr. Delta and the Lat. D; as, Ir. Dia, God; Gr. Zeus, accusat. Dia, Gr. Theos; Lat. Deus. Ir. dearcadh, to see, from dearc, the eye; Gr. derco, to see. Ir. do, two; Gr. and Lat. duo. Ir. Dis, two persons; Gr. Dis, Lat. Bis, twice. Ir. Déac or deag, and deich, ten; Gr. deca, and Lat. decem. The Irish D also agrees with the Gr. Th, or Theta; as, Ir. Doras, Ang. Sax. Door; Gr. Thuras, accusat. plur. This Irish letter agrees in like manner with the Hebrew Daleth or Dh, which by putting a full point over it becomes a D. (See the general remarks on the letter B.) Ir. Dirig, or Diric; Lat. Dirig, to direct; Heb. Derech, via, iter, and Derach, direxit viam, tetendit. Ir. Duille and Duilléog, the page of a book, Heb. Deleth, folium, pagina libri. The Irish language is industriously censured by some critics for admitting a superfluous D or Dh in the latter end of several words; but these censurers should consider that this redundancy of the letter D was formerly observed in the Latin, of which we have a remarkable instance left us in Fabr. Iss. Antiq. Expl. p. 427, Neve in publicod neve in privatod nevextrad urbem de senatuos sententiad, &c. And we find a near coincidence of that redundancy in the Hebrew Language; for as in the infinite mood of several Irish verbs, such as fealladh, to deceive, Lat. fallere, dearcadh, to see, Gr. derco, D and its aspirate dh are not pronounced; thus in the Hebrew Raah, to see, leah, to toil or labour, &c. The final letter He or h, is not pronounced, but like the Irish Dh, becomes a mute or quiescent letter. Many other examples of redundancies both of consonants and vowels, as also of barbarous forms of words in the old Latin tongue may be produced from Signor Fabretti's collections of ancient Roman Inscriptions and other writings: and this barbarity of the Latin we may trace down to the time of the first Latin poets, such as Ennius and Nævius, nay even as far as Plautus, in whose time the Romans did not think themselves entitled to be excluded out of the number of the barbarian nations; since this poet not only calls Nævius Poeta barbarus, but also says of himself on occasion of his version of a piece of Greek into Latin, M. Atticus (for that was his name, Plautus being only a nick name) vertit barbarè. Whence it appears that Festus Pompeius was well founded in saying that anciently all nations excepting the Greeks were called barbarians; but the proud Greeks should in gratitude have excepted the Phenicians, from whom they had received the knowledge of letters, and the Egyptians, to whom they owed their Theology and Mythology. And indeed the Latin may be justly looked upon as a mere barbarian Language, when it was written in such a style as appears in the few following lines, Quom ea res consoleretur, iovisient censuere Plous V. oinovorsei homines virei, atque mulieres sacra nequisquam fecisse velet, neve inter ibei virei Plous duobus, mulieribus Plous tribus adesse velent, nisi de P. R. Urbani, Senatuosque sententiad utei supra scriptum est Haice utei in conventionid ex deicatis ne minus trinum noumdinum Senatuosque, &c. Fabr. ibid. pag. 427. These two samples of the old Latin are enough to demonstrate, that the Language of the primitive Romans, much famed as they have been, was at least as much charged with redundant consonants at the end of words, as the Irish is thought to be; and if those who censure it for such redundancies of consonants, did but look back and consider the kind of Jargon their ancestors spoke and wrote about four or five hundred years since, and even to the end of Queen Elizabeth's reign, they could not but acknowledge it to be a much more uncouth and rude Language than the Irish ever hath been. It is a well known fact that the sons or grandsons of the chiefs and leaders of those English who adventured into Ireland on the expedition in favour of the King of Leinster, and made settlements there under the protection of that Prince, became so disgusted with their own native Language, that they utterly abandoned and forgot it, and spoke no other than the Irish; insomuch that the English government judged it necessary to order an Act of Parliament by which the English who settled in Ireland were strictly forbidden the use of the Irish Language under certain penalties. To all which I shall add that those censurers of the Irish Language for a pretended redundancy of consonants, betray their want of knowledge concerning the true marks of perfection and antiquity of Languages, of which marks the most essential is the preservation of radical letters, which are properly the consonants; and in this very point the learned Mr. Lhuyd gives the Irish the preference of perfection before all other dialects of the Celtic tongue, as may be seen in his Archælogia, pag. 23, col. 1. But it is moreover to be observed, that in reality there are no redundant or superfluous consonants in the words of the Irish Language, though there are some that are not properly radicals, originally belonging to the frame of the words they are found in. Of these non-radicals there are two sorts; the one consisting of consonants that are merely adventitious, of which there has been a good deal said in the remarks on the letter A; I mean those consonants that are thrown in between two vowels belonging to two different syllables. But as those adventitious consonants have the sanction not only of antiquity, but also of examples in Greek and Latin, and I dare say in most other ancient Languages, they are not to be counted superfluous; especially as they are of particular use in easing the voice by preventing a disagreeable hiatus. Another kind of adventitious consonants is frequently found at the beginning of words, particularly when those words have a reference to persons or things, as in the words; a n' doirne, their fists, ar n' dòchas, our hope, a g' cinn, their heads, in which the consonants (n) and (g) are naturally foreign to the words they are prefixed to, though the nature of the language absolutely requires their being prefixed in such circumstances. But the other sort of consonants which are not properly radicals, are yet neither adventitious nor foreign to the nature of the words, but do rather necessarily arise from the inflections of nouns and verbs, and therefore cannot be redundant. Nor do those non-radical consonants clog the Language or render it disagreeable in its use; inasmuch as they are mollified, or rendered entirely mute or quiescent by the aspirite (h) excepting only the consonant brought in as an initial, which is always pronounced; but then it eclipses the radical consonant to which it is prefixed; so that the word is pronounced as if that radical consonant had no existence, though all radical initials are religiously preserved in the writing, for the sake of preserving the original structure and propriety of the Language; a method which that candid and learned Welshman, Mr. Lhuyd, highly commends, and shews the abuses which the non-observance of it by the Welsh writers has occasioned in their Language. See Archæol, pag. 23, col. 1.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER E.

E is the fifth Letter of the Irish Alphabet, and the second of the five vowels, of the denomination of Caol, or small vowels. It is sometimes short and sometimes long, and thus answers the Gr. Epsilon and Eta, as Capellus ingeniously observes of the Latin. E vocalis, says he, duarum Græcarum vim possidet; nam cum corripitur, Epsilon est, cum producitur, Eta est. It is in Irish called Eábha; or Eádha, from Eadha, the Aspen-tree, Latin, tremula, which is commonly called Crann criothach, and is not unlike the name of the Greek vowel Eta and the Heb. Heth. It is commutable only with I, and is very often, but more especially in ancient manuscripts, written and used for I indifferently, and we find this indifference common to the Latins, as Dii for Dei, heri for here, vespere and vesperi, cinis and ciner, impubes and impubis, omnis for omnes, from decem is formed undecim, from emo, premo is formed redimo and comprimo. E is the prepositive vowel in the five Diphthongs and Triphthongs called na cuig Heádhbha, or heabhadh, or the five Ephthongs, viz. ea, eo, eoi, eu, ei, and of these the Hebrews have eu, as Heb. Scaleu, Lat. tranquillus, &c. But Gr. and Lat. have both eu. and ei, as Lat. heu, hei and Gr. eu, Lat. benè. Gr. eido, Lat. video, &c.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER F.

F is the sixth letter of the Irish Alphabet, and is called by our Grammarians Consoine lag, or a weak consonant. By fixing a full point over it, or subjoining an h, it loses all force in the pronunciation, as: don fhear, or a fhir, is pronounced don ear, or a ir, to the man, O man. A fhéile, his generosity, is pronounced: a éile, &c. It is called feárn, from feárn, commonly feárnóg, the elder-tree. Lat. alnus. It is the same with the Hebrew vau; because the figure and sound of both letters are very nearly the same. This letter agrees in many words with the Latin V consonant, as: fear, a man, hence in the oblique and plur. fir, Latin vir. Fior, true, Lat. verus; Fion, wine, Latin, vinum. Focal, a word, Lat. vocalis; feighil, a vigil, Lat. vigilia. It often corresponds with the Gr. phi. or ph, as faidh, pronounced faig, a prophet, Gr. phates, and Lat. vates: feall and fala, deceit, cheating, Gr. phaulos, Lat. vilis. Feaga, a beech-tree, Gr. phegos, Lat. fagus, &c. When a tittled or aspirated B is prefixed to f, it is pronounced like V consonant; as from fada, long, a Bhfad, is pronounced, a vad; a bhfuair, is pronounced, a vuair. It is evident, that the Greeks and Latins have also observed a close original affinity with regard to the letters f, b, v, and ph; as b for v, Lat. base for vase, cibica for civica. Ir. beara, a spit, Lat. veru; and again, v for b, as, aveo for abeo, vobem for bozem, Ir. bo, vestias for bestias; and sometimes b for f, as bruges for fruges, as Cicero relates, and Ir. bun the bottom of any thing. Gr. benthos, and Lat. fundum. Ir. breim, a terrible sound, Gr. bremo, Lat. freno, to sound or rattle: and again f is used for b, as sifilare for sibilare, which the French call siffler, af vobis for ab vobis. Hence we commonly say suffero, for subfero, &c. We find, that B was anciently used among the Greeks for ph, and Plutarch tells us, that the Macedonians always said Bilippon for Philippon, and Festus says, that they used albon for alphon, Lat. album. Note, that in words beginning with the letter (f) it is quite eclipsed and of no force in the pronunciation, when it happens by the course of speech, that (d) (t) (m) or bh is prefixed to it. Ex. d'feoil, of flesh, d'fear, of or to a man, are pronounced deoil, dear, &c. T'fear, thy husband, t'feoil, thy flesh, are pronounced tear, teoil, m'fear, m'feoil, are pronounced meat, meoil, &c. Ar bh'fir, our men, ar bh'fearan, our land or ground, are pronounced, as if written; ar bhir, or ar vir; ar bhearrum, or ar vearran. So that the initial (f) is quite eclipsed, and taken no notice of in the pronunciation, though it always stands in the writing for preserving the radical frame of the word.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER G.

G is the seventh letter of the Irish Alphabet, and is ranked by our Grammarians in the number of heavy consonants, called by the Irish Consoineadh trom, but when it is aspirated or marked with an (h) subjoined to it, it is counted one of the light consonants, called Consoineadh éadrom. In this aspirated state, (g) being the initial letter of a word, is pronounced like y, in the English words, York, young, &c. or like the Spanish (i) consonant in the word Jesus, Joseph; but (g) aspirated by a subjoined (h) in the middle or end of a word, is rendered quite quiescent or suppressed in the pronunciation.

Thus the words Tighearna, a Lord, and Rígh, a King, are pronounced Tierna and Rí. But (g) in its unaspirated and natural state has always the same strong power with the Greek Gamma. The very figure of the letter (g) in some of our old parchments, is not essentially dissimilar to some of the cuts of the old Abrahamic and Phenician Gimel, in the first alphabet or middle column of Dr. Bernard's table of old alphabets, published by Dr. Morton. The Hebrews called this letter Gimel, as we are assured by Grammarians, from its crooked figure, bearing some resemblance to a camel, which in Hebrew is called Gamel or Gamal; and to observe it, by the by, Gamal, as well as camul, is the Irish for a camel. In the Cadmean and Ionic alphabets, to be seen in the 8th column of Dr. Bernard's table, this letter (G) is called Gamla, which is but a varied writing of the Hebrew Gimel or Gamel, or the Syrian Gomal, as the gamma of the less ancient Greeks is likewise but a different utterance of the Ionic word gamla.

It hath been observed in the remarks on the letter (C), that it is naturally commutable with (g), both letters being of the same organ and nearly of the same power; and hence in our old parchments, they are written indifferently for each other, of which practice some examples have been cited. I cannot however but be of opinion, that this indifference should be limited, and that the general and unlimited use of it should naturally be deemed abusive—for the most ancient alphabets of the Hebrews, Phenicians, Syrians and Greeks, have the gimel, and caph, or the gamma and cappa, as two distinct letters of different powers or functions, and consequently those letters are to be regarded as two different radicals of words, in the original elementary formation of all dictions. The same indifference, or interchangeable use of the letters (g) and (c) in the Latin tongue, and the latter being generally substituted in the place of the former, appears from ancient Roman Inscriptions, and most particularly from that of the columna Rostrata, erected in honour of Duillius the Consul, whereupon were engraved the words Macistratos, Leciones, pugnando, Carthacinenses, copias, instead of Magistratos, Legiones, pugnando, Carthaginenses. From the manner of this inscription, some writers have concluded, that the letter (g) was not in the Roman alphabet, nor used in the Latin tongue till after the first Punic war; and Plutarch informs us, it was brought in by Sp. Carvilius, wherefore Diomedes calls it nova consona. But there is this other foundation for judging, that the Latins had the gamma or (g) from the beginning, as a quite different letter from the Cappa; viz. that inasmuch as they received their alphabet from the Greeks, who had theirs from the Phenicians; and as the Phenician alphabet had always the gimel or (g) different from the caph or (C); both which different letters were also from the beginning in the old Ionic alphabets, as appears by Dr. Bernard's 8th alphabet, column 9th, of his table it follows, that the Latins had also, from the beginning, both these letters with different power or functions.

Nor do I believe it will ever appear, that the old Romans wrote cenus, ceneratio, caudium, for genus, generatio, gaudium, and other such words, which I cannot but think were always written with a gamma or (g) different from (C). The primitive Latin alphabet, as well as the old Ionic, contained the letter (K), or kappa, which served for a (C) as well as for a (K), in the same manner as the Ionic gamla served for a (G) and a (C). But as the letter (K) was not agreeable to the genius of the Latin tongue, to serve instead of which the Latins changed the gamma into a (C), and then made a separate letter of the gamma or (g), which they removed into the seventh place, with a figure or shape not much different from their (C), which remained in the place of the primitive gamma. This change of place was doubtless what gave occasion to Diomedes to call the (G) a new consonant. The bare inspection of the old Latin alphabet, derived from the Ionic, as it was used by the Romans about 714 years before Christ, to be seen in Dr. Morton's edition, column 17, will be sufficient to justify what hath now been advanced. In the meantime we should not have forgot to observe, that the name of the letter (G) in the Irish, is gort, which signifies the ivy tree, vulgarly called eidhnean, Lat. hedera. Our Grammarians commonly use (c c) or double (c) instead of (g), especially when the radical word begins with (c), as a ccosa, their feet; a ccinn, their heads; which are pronounced, a gosa, a ginn. But the most correct manner of writing these and the like words is a g' cosa, a g' cinn, &c.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER H.

H is not admitted as a letter into the Irish Alphabet, nor otherwise employed in the Irish Language than as a mere aspirate, in the same manner as in the Greek. The Greeks anciently used (H) as a letter, and not merely as an aspirate. It was one of the characters of their most ancient Alphabets, and it is well known they wrote THEOS with the different letters (T) and (H) instead of THEOS written with the single letter Theta. In the Irish Language (H) is prefixed as a strong aspirate before words beginning with a vowel, and having reference to objects of the Female sex, as a h'aidh, her face; a h'ór, her gold; and secondly, when such words are preceded by the Irish prepositions le or re, with or by, which take place not only in ordinary words, as le h'ór agus le h'airgiod, with gold and silver, but also in the names of Countries, Principalities and particular Clans, as le h'Osrúighibh, le h'Uladh, with or by the people of Ossory, with Ulidia; It is now called Uath, from Uath the whitethorn tree.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER I.

I is the eighth letter of the Irish Alphabet, and the third of the five vowels, of the denomination of caol or small vowels. It is called Iodha from Iodha vulgò iúbar the yew tree, Lat. taxus, and is not unlike the Hebrew Jod, and Gr. Iota, as to its appellative. The Irish Language admits of no (I) consonant no more than the Greek, and it seems to appear by the following examples that the Latins did not use it as a distinct character, for they wrote, as Priscian tells us, peius for pejus, and eijs for ejus, &c. In our old manuscripts e and i were written indifferently one for another, as has been observed in the remarks upon e. It is the prepositive vowel of those diphthongs, and triphthongs which are called na cúig, Ifine, or the five iphthongs from Ifn the gooseberry bush, Lat. grossularia, viz. ia, iai, iu, iuí, and io, of which we find iu used among the Hebrews, as Heb. piu, Lat. os ejus.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER L.

L is the ninth letter of the Irish Alphabet, and the first of the three Consonants L, N, R, which admit of no aspirate, and are called by our Grammarians, coinsoineadha eadtroma, or light Consonants; It is called in Irish Luis, vulgò cárthan, the quicken tree, Lat. ornus. This letter being the initial of a word which has reference to the Female Sex, is pronounced double, though written singly, as, a lámh, her hand is pronounced, al lámh, as in the Spanish word llamar, and lleno. L, beginning words referred to persons or things of the plural number, is also pronounced double, as, a leabhar, their book,

REMARKS ON THE LETTER M.

M is the tenth letter of the Irish Alphabet, and is counted among the strong consonants, called Consoineadha teanna, and then has the force of V consonant; as, a mháthair, his mother; a mhaighdion, his virgin, are pronounced, a Váthair, a Vaighdion.—It is called Muin, from Muin, the vine, Lat. vitis. As to its figure in the Irish and old Saxon, it resembles the Hebrew Mem, so called from the sound. It is often prefixed by an apostrophe (which cuts off the vowels annexed to it), to the beginning of nouns, whether they begin with vowels or consonants, and then signifies my or mine: as, m'anam, my soul, i. e. mo anam; m'eólus, my skill, i. e. mo eólus; m'fear, my husband, i. e. mo fhear, &c. wherefore it may be well called a prepositive pronoun. It is also added to verbs in the present tense, first person; as, léighim, I read, i. e. léigh me; múnaim, I teach, i. e. múnaidh me; Lat. mones, &c.; and in this latter sense it may not be improperly called a subjunctive pronoun.

We think it well worth observing here, that our language bears a perfect resemblance, in the disposition of its pronouns, to the manner of ordering them in the Hebrew—for the latter divide them into classes, which they respectively called præfixa, and suffixa, or prepositive and subjunctive pronouns. The prepositive are set before words, and the subjunctive are written in the end of words; both equally determine the person. M, when aspirated, is often confounded by our Copyists with b aspirated, because they both sound like v consonant, as the Irish of a river is written amhan, and more frequently, but abusively abhan; and also in the words úamhan, and úabhan, fear, horror—in these and the like doubts, we should always have recourse to other languages, in which we may find the radical letter. Thus, when we consider, that amnis in the Latin is the appellative of a river, and that phobos in Greek, is the appellative of fear, we may safely conclude, that m is the radical letter in the former, and b in the latter; and consequently, that the one should be properly written amhan, and not abhan; and the other úabhan, and not úamhan. The like doubt often arises in the middle of certain words, in which d and g are indifferently written, as for the Irish of a face or complexion, we commonly write aghaidh, and very rarely adhaidh—but by consulting the Greek, we see it written Eidos, and thence may be convinced, that our Irish word should be properly written adhaidh, and not aghaidh. M is often set before b in the beginning of words, in which case b is not pronounced, although it is the radical letter; as, a m'bliaghana, this year; a m'béasa, their manners; a m'briathra, their words, are pronounced, a mliaghana, a méasa, a mriathra. B is sometimes changed into m; as, bean, a woman, gen. mnaoi, and plur. mna, mnaibh; bo, a cow, gen. muin; as, do'n mhuin. We find that Æolians instead of M often wrote B and P, which, as has been observed in their own places, are almost identically the same letter; as, Gr. bellein, for mellein, Lat. debere; Gr. piculos, for micullos, parvulus; hence the Italians retain piccolo, to signify little. And again they write m instead of b and p; as, mathousa, for pathousa; Lat. patiens, and Lat. somnus; from Gr. hupnos. The Latins familiarly eclipse b, in some words, as for submitto, we pronounce summitto. Wherefore we should be less surprised, if such indifferences and dubious words be found in a language, so much neglected and uncultivated as the Irish language has been for some ages past. It is to be noted, that though m aspirated is frequently substituted in the place of an aspirated b, and vice versa; yet it is for want of judgment in the writer, inasmuch as the vowel or vowels, which precede the latter, are pronounced with a stronger, clearer, and more open expiration, than those that precede the former. This difference of pronunciation is sensibly observable; for example, between treabh, a tribe, and leamh, insipid, as well as between slabhuidhe, a slave, and snamhuidhe, a swimmer.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER N.

N is the eleventh letter of the Irish Alphabet, is never aspirated, and is ranked by our Grammarians among the light consonants, called Consoineadha éaltroma;—when it is prefixed to G in the beginning of a word, it is ranked among the robust, called consoineadha teanna, and then both letters are called Ngeatal, or Niatál, from Niatál, a reed, Lat. Arundo. It is called Nuin, from Nuin, the ash tree, Lat. fraxinus. In Hebrew it is called Nun, from the sound; it is often doubled, and then sounds strong, as ceann, a head, lann, a sword, teann, strong; but a double nn is rarely written in Irish, a little stroke being set over the letter instead of it, thus (-). We find this manner was familiar to the Latins in ancient times, and by the ignorance of some copyists and engravers, has made many words dubious; for they often omitted n, when they should always write it, as Clemeti, for Clementi; Cojux, for Conjux. The Greeks in like manner omitted n in some words; for they wrote Hortesios, for Hortensius, and Gallia Norbonesia, Lougdonesia, and Hispania Tarraconesia, for Gallia Narbonensis, Lugdunensis, and Taraconensis; and the Latins did sometimes insert it where it had no right to stand, as in conjux, for conjux; totiens for toties; and quotiens for quoties. Because these writers and engravers did not understand the little bars or strokes set over some vowels to denote a long pronunciation, instead of which they wrote n or m; and again, when these bars had been intended to signify n or m, they ignorantly took them for the sign of a long syllable. And indeed these mistakes are not unusual among our Irish copyists, nor can a language, whose histories and writings depend on manuscripts be free from the like errors. It is to be noted, that as this letter receives no aspirate, so it is never eclipsed by prefixing any other letter to it in the beginning of words. It is likewise to be observed, that the letter n at the beginning of words, which are referred either to objects of the feminine gender, or to persons or things of the plural number, is pronounced double, and very nearly with the same sound as gn in the French Seigneur, or n in the Spanish word Señor. This double pronunciation in like circumstances, is common to the three consonants L, N, R, as hath been already observed of the L, and shall be in like manner of the R. Thus for example, in the word neart, when we say, a neart, meaning the strength of a woman, the initial letter n is pronounced double, as it is in the same a neart, when it means their strength, and so in all other words beginning with n, as a radical letter.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER O.

O is the twelfth letter of the Irish Alphabet, and the fourth vowel; it is of the denomination of Leathan, or broad vowels; and is therefore used indifferently with a or u in old Irish Manuscripts, and in some words by the moderns: as, déar, déur, a tear; Lat. lacryma. We find that the Greeks, especially the Dorians, did change their a into o: as, troma for trauma, a wound; olax for aulax, a furrow. The Latins anciently wrote coda for cauda; plostrum for plaustrum; lotus for lautus, &c. In the Latin we also find a written for o: as, from creo is formed creavi and creatum; and u has been sometimes taken for o: as, funtes for fontes; frundes for frondes; fretu for freto; Acherunte for Acheronte, &c. in Lucretius. Pliny says that some states of Italy, particularly the Umbrians and Tuscans, did not at all use o, but always wrote u instead of it. This letter is sometimes short and sometimes long, and in this, corresponds with the Greek omega and omicron. It is the prepositive vowel of the diphthong óir, so called from óir the spindle tree; vulgò, as, coilon, coine, Lat. calum, cana.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER P.

P is the thirteenth letter of the Irish Alphabet, and ranked among the hard consonants, called in Irish consoineadha crúadha. It bears an aspirate, and then pronounces exactly like the Greek phi; and is numbered among the rough consonants, called consoineadha garbha. This letter is called in Irish Peith-bhog. Our Grammarians do not inform us from what tree it borrows this appellation, and O'Flaherty is equally silent concerning it. But it seems quite obvious, that it can mean nothing else than Beith-bhog, or B soft—that is to say, P is only a soft or mollifying way of expressing B; and the reason of it is, because originally they were the same letter, and P was not used in the Irish Language before our knowledge of the Latin, in the time of St. Patrick. In our old parchments we find these two letters taken indifferently one for another; as, prútach, a boor or rustic, for brútach; Lat. brutum. Péist or Piast, any beast, for béist; Lat. bestia; dóiph, to them, for dóibh; Siph, you, for Sibh, &c. And in like manner, B is very often set before any word beginning with P, in which case P is not pronounced, although it seems to be a primary letter; as a bpian, their pain; Lat. pæna; a bpriacail, their danger; Lat. periculum; a bpeacadh, their sin; Lat. peccatum; pronounced a bian, a brincal, a beacadh, &c. By which we may plainly see how just is the remark of Mr. Lhuyd, in his comparative Etymology, title 1. page 21. col. 1. “There are,” says he, “scarce any words in the Irish, besides what are borrowed from the Latin or some other language that begin with P; insomuch, that in an ancient Alphabetical Vocabulary, I have by me, that letter is omitted.” Besides we find in the old Norwegian Alphabet, which is the ancient Runic alphabet, that there is no difference between the figure of the characters B and P. See Olaus Worm. lit. Run. p. 54. The Greeks wrote them indifferently one for another; as, G. batein, for patein; Lat. ambulare; bicron, for Picron; Lat. acerbum. Hence it is, that in verbs, which terminate in bo, they change it into pso in the future tense; as, Gr. leibo, to leave, fut. leipso, and not leibso. And the Latins have followed their example; as scribo, to write, Perf. scripsi, and Sup. scriptum, and not scribsi, and scribtum. And it is by reason of this identity between B and P, that the Latins say, pasco, to feed, from Gr. bosco; papæ, from Gr. babai; burus, from Gr. puros; pedo, from Gr. bdeo; puteus, from Gr. buthos, &c. And the Greeks, to observe it, by the by, have, in like manner, taken their Burgos, a tower or castle, from the Phenicians, their first instructors in letters, in whose language it is Borg, which is plainly of the same root with our Irish word brog or brug, a strong or fortified place, also a Lord's court or castle; whence the French Bourg, the German Burgh, and English Borough, do in a larger sense signify a town; just as Castellum, properly a fortress, is often used by Cesar, in his Commentaries, to signify a town or village; and in the same manner, that the Gothic word Gards, properly a house or castle, doth sometimes mean a town; for Asgard and Asburg, are the same. But to indicate the close, mutual affinity of B and P, Quintilian assures us, that in pronouncing the word obtineuit, our ears rather perceive optineuit. In old inscriptions apsens, is written for absens, pleps, for plebs, poplicus, for publicus, &c.—And hence we familiarly say, Suppono, for Subpono, oppono, for obpono. The Dutch pronounce ponum vinum, for bonum vinum.—By what has been observed, we plainly see, that B and P were originally the same letter, and that Peith-bhog can be nothing else than Beith-bhog or B mollified.—Mr. Lhuyd remarks in the above cited place, that a considerable number of those words, whose initial letter is P in the British, begin in the Irish with C, ex. paraid, wherefore, Ir. cread; Wel. pryv, a worm; Ir. cruimh; Wel. prenn, a tree; Ir. crann; Wel. pen, a head; Ir. ceann.—We find the like affinity in many words, between the Greek and Latin, and the Irish language; as, Ir. Caisg and Casga, Easter; Greek and Latin pascha, and Chaldaicé pascha, which is derived from the Hebrew.—Pasach or Phase; Lat. transitus, the Passover; Ir. cos, the leg; Gr. pous, and Lat. pes; Ir. clúmh, a feather; Lat. pluma; Gr. ptilon and ptiluma; Wel. pluz, &c.—The same observation has been made by Vossius, with respect to the interrogative, and relative of the Ionic Dialect—“Iones,” says he, “in interrogativis, mutant p in c, ita còs dicunt pro pòs, hocos pro hopos, pro poios, coios, pro pote, cote, ce pro pe.”—Mr. Baxter (in Glossario antiquæ Britannicæ, p. 90.) remarks, that the oldest Brigantes, whom he esteems the first inhabitants of Britain, never used, in their language, the sound of the letter P, which was afterwards introduced by the Belgic Britons. If the old Brigantes were really of the first inhabitants of Britain, it would follow, that they were a part of the Guídelian or Gaulish colony, who went over to Ireland, and whom Mr. Lhuyd evidently proves to have been the first inhabitants of all that part of Great Britain, which now comprehends England and Wales.—It hath been observed before, that the Lingua prisca, or the primitive Latin tongue was chiefly formed upon the Celtic; and the truth of this assertion is abundantly confirmed throughout the whole course of this Dictionary. This being premised as a fact, it follows, that the subsequent Celtic, still preserved in the Irish—viz. clúmh, cuiltse, (corruptly cúisle), corcur or curcur, cland, coib, obuir, secht, were respectively the originals upon which the Latin words pluma, pulsus, purpura, planta, copiæ (copiarum), opus, operis, septem, have been formed, as mere derivatives from their respective Celtic Archetypes above written.—This indeed plainly appears from their consisting of a greater number of syllables. Hence, I presume, it may rationally be conjectured, that the primitive Latin words in the lingua prisca, formed upon the above Celtic originals, were clumo, culsus curcura, clanta, cobia, arum, obus, oberis, sectem.—This conjecture is the more rational, as the primitive number of letters, brought first into Greece by Cadmus, and afterwards to the Aborigines of Italy by Evander the Arcadian, consisted but of sixteen, as we are assured by Tacitus, Anal. II. and by Pliny, l. 7. c. 56, which could not be without excluding the letter P as well as the H, which latter makes but an aspirate in several languages.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER R.

The letter R, which is the fourteenth of the Irish Alphabet, is not susceptible of many Remarks. It is called Ruis, by our Grammarians, from the old Irish name of the tree, which in the vulgar Irish is called Trom, the elder tree; Lat. Sambucus; Gr. acte. This letter is one of the three consonants called consoineadha éadhtroma, which do not admit of the aspirate h. In the remarks on the two others, which are L and N, it has been observed, that in words or nouns substantive, beginning with either of them, and referred to things or persons of the feminine gender, or to any things or persons in the plural number, those initials are pronounced double, though written singly.—Thus, a lucht, her or their milk, is pronounced as if written a Llucht; or like the words Llamar and Lleno; in Spanish, and a Neart, her or their strength, is pronounced as if written a Nneart, or like gn in the French word Seigneur. Thus also in substantives, beginning with R, and referred to things or persons either of the feminine gender or of the plural number—the initial R is pronounced double, and with a strong utterance; as, a réuma, her or their rheum or phlegm, is pronounced as if written a rréuma, and very nearly as the aspirate R in the Greek word Rheuma. Another essential remark to be made on these three letters, L, N, R, and which hath not as yet been made, is, that when they are initials of adjectives, they are never pronounced double, of whatever gender or number the things or persons those adjectives are referred to, should happen to be. Lastly, it is to be remarked, that L, N, R, are the only consonants of the Irish language which are written double; and this duplication frequently happens, both in the middle and end of words, but never in the beginning, though they are pronounced double, when initials, in the cases above explained.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER S.

S is the fifteenth letter of the Irish Alphabet, and is not ranked by our Grammarians in any particular order of the consonants; but, is absolutely called sometimes Aimrid, or barren; and sometimes Bain-rioghan na cconsoineadha, or the Queen of the consonants; because in the composition of Irish verse it will admit of no other consonant to correspond with it; and our Irish Prosodians are as nice and punctual in the observance of the Uaim and Cómhordúghadh, or union and correspondence, as the Greeks and Latins are in the collocation of their Dactyles and Spondees. So, that if an Irish Poet should have transgressed against the established rule and acceptation of the consonants, he would be exposed to severe reprehension. We find in the Greek division of the consonants into several classes, as mutes, liquids, &c. that the letter Sigma, or S, is styled: Sue potestatis litera, or an absolute and independent letter. In Irish it is called Suil, or Sail, from Sail, the willow tree, Lat. Salix. It is to be noted that all Irish words beginning with the letter S, and which are of the feminine gender, must necessarily admit of an adventitious T before the initial S, when the Irish particle an, (which in signification answers to the English article the) is prefixed to such words. In which case the T eclipses the S, so that the word is pronounced as if it had not belonged to it; though S is always written to shew it is the initial radical letter. Thus, the word Súil, an eye, or the eye; Sròn, a nose, or the nose, when the Irish particle an, signifying the in English, is prefixed to them, are necessarily to be written; an tsuil, an tsròn, and pronounced an túil, an trón. But words beginning with S, which are of the masculine gender, admit of no adventitious letter, as a prefix. Thus we say and write, an Slinneán, a shoulder; an solus, the light; and this, by the by, is one method to find out the gender of words beginning with S. It is also to be observed, that when S is aspirated by subjoining h to it, which cannot happen but when it is an initial letter, it becomes by this means quiescent; so that its sound is not distinguishable from that of a T, aspirated at the beginning of a word; for the words, a Shúil, his eye; a theanga, his tongue, are pronounced as if written a húil, a heanga.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER T.

T is the sixteenth Letter of the Irish Alphabet, and ranked among the hard consonants; consoineadha cruadha. It bears an aspirate, and then is numbered among the rough consonants, called consoineadha garbha, and pronounces like h. This letter is called Teine; from teine, furze. The letter T is naturally commutable with D, both being letters of the same organ; and accordingly, in our old MSS. we find them indifferently written, the one for the other, in the middle and end of words; but seldom or never as initials. In the remarks on the letter G, and its being equally commutable with C, it hath been observed, that the unlimited practice of indifferently substituting the one instead of the other, could not but be abusive in some respects. The same observation holds good with regard to T and D; not only because they are two different letters, holding different places in all the alphabets, and consequently of different powers and functions in the radical and original formation of words, but also because such an unlimited indifference, in substituting those letters for each other in any particular language, cannot but be prejudicial to the affinity which the words of that language may radically bear with the words of the same meaning in other languages. It is to be remarked, that the letter T is used as an adventitious prefix to all Irish words beginning with a vowel, which are of the masculine gender, and are preceded by the article an, which in English signifies the; ex. an t'eanam, the soul, an t'ean, the bird; an t'ionghnadh, the wonder; an t'óighear, the young man; an t'uachtarán, the superior. It hath been observed in the remarks on the letter S, that words of the feminine gender beginning with S, or suppressed in the pronunciation, as in the words an t'slat, an t'súil, an t'srón, &c. pronounced an tlat, an tóil, an trón. But this rule suffers one remarkable and curious exception, which is, that words beginning with the letter S, in which the initial S is immediately followed by either T or D, will not admit an adventitious T as a prefix; as in the words an stuirm, an stiúr, an stuic, an stéig, an sdáid, an sdáit, &c. It is also to be noted of this letter T, that when it is aspirated, with a subjoined h, it is then rendered quiescent and suppressed in the pronunciation; as in the word a theanga, his tongue, which is pronounced, S, must receive the prefix t, when they are of the masculine gender, beginning with mullach an t'sléibhe, the top of the mountain; bealbhach an t'sriain, the mouth-piece of the bridle; roimh-chial an t'siongáin, the forecast of the ant; gliocas an t'sionnaigh, the cunning of the fox. But in the genitive plural, we say, mullaigh na sléibhte, bealbhacha na sriain, reimh-chial na siongáin, &c.

REMARKS ON THE LETTER U.

U is now the seventeenth and last letter of the Irish Alphabet, which originally consisted but of sixteen letters. vid. Remarks on the letter P. This letter is called by Grammarians Ur, which means the yew tree, otherwise written úbhur and iubhar. U is one of the three broad or grave vowels, and was used indifferently for a or o, not only in the Irish Language, but likewise in the Greek and Latin. Cassiodorus observes that the old Latins made no difference between u and o in their manner of writing or pronouncing, Volt being frequently used for Vult, colpa for culpa, præstu for præsto, poblicum for publicum, and hoc for huc; as in Virgil's Æneid, "Hoc tunc ignipotens calo descendit ab alto." And for the Greek nux the Latins wrote nox, for Gr. mule Lat. mola; also a for u, as Gr. culix, Lat. calix, Gr. mudao Lat. madeo; likewise u for a, as for the Greek Hecabe the Latins wrote Hecuba, Gr. calamos Lat. culmus; and in the Latin we find the a in the word calco changed into u, in its compound conculo. The Irish Alphabet has no u consonant, to which an aspirated b or bh is equivalent in power and pronunciation, as likewise in the Greek, a single b or beta serves for v, thus, for the Hebrew word David, the Greeks write Dabid, as the Irish do Dábhi, vid. Remarks on the letters b and f. In many of the ancient vellum MSS. a dotted or aspirated u is sometimes made to represent the bh or v consonant. U is the initial or leading vowel of the three upthongs ua, uai and ui, called na tri huilleana, from uillean the honey-suckle tree, Lat. caprifolium. Scioppius and Carisius have remarked that a syllable may be formed either by one vowel, or by two, or by three, as in the word aquæ, &c. but Quintilian will not allow three vowels can be united in one syllable, and Terentian joins him in the same opinion: syllabam, says he, non invenimus ex tribus. But a syllable of three vowels is very common, as well as easy and natural in the Irish Language. The Hebrews have the diphthong ui, as in the word Galui, Lat. revelatum, &c. as also a whole word consisting of only two vowels, as the Hebrew ai, which signifies an Island, Region or Country. vid. Opitius's and Buxtorf's Heb. Lexicons. I would be curious to know how the ingenious Monsieur Bergier, who allows no radicals but consonants, would make out the radical formation of this Hebrew ai, or of the Greek words uiou the genitive, and uiea the accusative of huius, filius, and of many other words of a like frame in other languages, especially in the Irish, wherein words consisting of vowels alone are very frequent. Nor is Monsieur Bergier's own language destitute of words of such a frame: the eau, water, is an obvious proof of it, amongst many others. I should rather join in opinion with the learned and judicious author of the treatise on the mechanical formation of languages, who reckons the vowels amongst the radical elements of all words. Their being commutable with each other should not deprive them of that privilege, no more than the consonants, many of which are equally interchangeable, and promiscuously used. Before we have done with the vowels it is fit to remark, that words beginning with a vowel, being of the masculine gender and of the nominative case singular, must have the letter T as a prefix, when preceded by an, as an t'anam, an t'uabhar, &c.
